Frosh View: The Traditional . . .

Dear Mom and Dad,

Hey, this isn't high school, you know? I mean like I've gone to bed no earlier than 3:00 a.m. this week. Somehow or other, I've come to feel like a number. There are as many kids in my psychology lecture as there were in my graduating class.

At orientation I thought this place was like summer camp with so many counselors running around telling you to go to bed. It's different now. We never have to be in the dorm. In fact, I could drop dead and no one would find out for weeks.

At times I feel like I'm swimming around in a sea of freshman beanies. There's so much to do, but don't get me wrong, I study a lot, but somehow I don't think I'm long for UMass.

Well, I've a mile walk ahead of me to the Southwest dorms to see this girl I met the other day. It's a study date, of course, so, good-bye.

Mal

P.S. Send money.

"Look to either side. One of you will not be here four years from now."

The Lederles and the Tippos receive freshmen at annual welcome tea.

RECTIONS

BY JEFFREY
AND JEFFREY
AND JEFFREY

A freshman good-naturedly responds to traditional hazing in the Hatch.

And The Casual . . .

"And, oh yes, they've all taught me to do the 'jerk'."

The already confused freshman finds the turmoil of registration just one more problem to face.

Freshmen girls are characterized by large groups and white beanies.

Dear Mom and Dad,

Well, we're finally here and the three of us are just about settled in our double room. Everything is so different from orientation. We don't have as many tests all at once anymore, but of course, I study all the time anyway.

I accidentally poked a hole in my I.B.M. card, and now they tell me I'm in the school of agriculture. It's rather upsetting but I'll discuss that later as I've more important things to tell you about now.

Last week I met the cutest boy while sitting in the Hatch. His name is 7876061. This past weekend he took me to the dance at the Union and then back to his fraternity house.

Week nights we have lots to do too. We've practiced every day for the Inter-dorm sing, built Homecoming floats, cheered at inter-mural football games, and attended countless meetings. The only drawback is our 8:00 curfew, but I guess it does give us lots of time to study.

Every night we all sit around and have the most intellectual discussions in the dorm. Barbara, Jessie, and Gail have shown me the neatest ways to style my hair. Nan has been teaching me new folksongs and Margie has lent me the greatest book entitled How to Earn a M.R.S. Degree. And, oh yes, they've all taught me to do the "jerk."

Well, I have to go now as 7876061 is waiting downstairs.

Love,
Julie

P.S. I need more money.

The sound of the "Boss Tweeds" drew a large crowd to the Student Union South Terrace during the Soph-Frosh picnic.

Not all the entertainment was provided by the "Boss Tweeds": for a picnic, you must have food, and there was plenty.

Soph-Frosh Picnic Promotes Inter-Class Spirit

On Saturday, October 2, the annual Soph-Frosh picnic was held on the green to the south of the Student Union.

Besides the attraction created by the usual hot dogs and soft drinks, the "Boss Tweeds" offered music for those who attended.

That night, a new and unusual rock and roll group performed in the student union Ballroom. "The Pandoras," an all-girl group from Simmons College, attracted a large crowd of interested spectators.

UMass freshmen had an opportunity to see many of the university organizations in action and, perhaps, choose one which suited their particular tastes at Student Activities Night held in the Ballroom of the Student Union on September 28.

Forty-five of the more than 200 UMass organizations were represented at the program sponsored by the Revelers.

Displays and brochures were designed to explain the programs and to recruit freshmen, as well as to interest upperclassmen.

WMUA broadcast live from the ballroom during the two hour program and students were able to talk to anyone within the greater Boston area thanks to the Amateur Radio Club.

Campus guides showed slides depicting scenes from the university, while the outing club was assembled complete with equipment including a canoe.

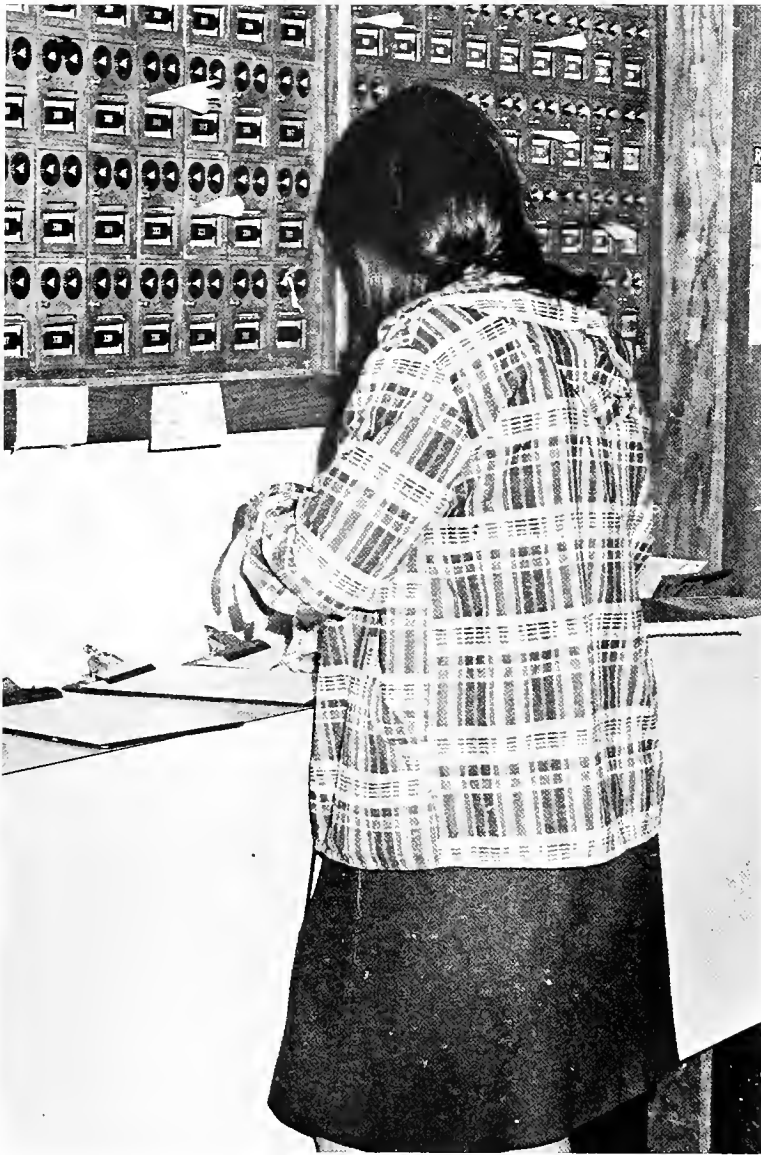

Student radio station, WMUA offered two hours of entertainment direct from the Student Union Ballroom on Student Activities Night.

The UMass Outing Club had a display of caving and camping equipment, complete with a canoe.

Hotel-like lobbies add to the luxury of the complex.

Fall of 1965 featured the opening of the residential college of the Southwest complex. The purpose of the complex is to facilitate student faculty relationships outside the classroom and student relationships in cultural, social, and academic aspects. The university and the residential complex staff, under the direction of Dr. Clarence Shute, hope to make the dormitory a more integral part of the student's life.

The residential complex has planned a program of events which includes lectures, movies and informal social activities. It is based on the same idea as Orchard Hill.

However, the Southwest complex differs from Orchard Hill in two ways: there are no faculty fellows living in Southwest, and there are no classes taught in the dormitories.

There are plans, however, in the near future, to have classes which would be composed predominantly of Southwest students. These classes will take place at the normal time and place but will enable a closer relationship to one's neighbors.

At the present time there are four buildings in the Southwest complex which house approximately 1000 students; next year, with the addition of two high risers, called the "Towers," there will be about 5000 students. A new dining commons will also be opened, exclusively for the residents of Southwest.

With common living quarters, speakers, classes, dining facilities, and social events the individual is provided with enriched social and intellectual experiences by the development of close personal relationships.

Dorm D sings of the inconveniences of the early days in the Southwest complex.

Women's Inter-Residence Hall Council attempts to encourage competition among the women's residence halls and promote spirit among the girls living in them. It does so by sponsoring a five point program which includes the Inter-Residence Hall sing, float parade, snow sculpture, W.A.A. competition and scholastic average.

In 1966, the Council plans to expand its program by sponsoring a coffee house on Saturday night of HER weekend and presenting a guest speaker.

The Women's Inter-Residence Hall sing was held in Boyden with guests and dignitaries invited. The theme was "Campus Life" and the girls were encouraged to set original songs to familiar melodies. Southwest D, the winner donned borrowed construction helmets to simulate the clammer of the complex and sang "Call us Dorm D" to the tune of "Rise and Shine."

Maroon Keys Auction

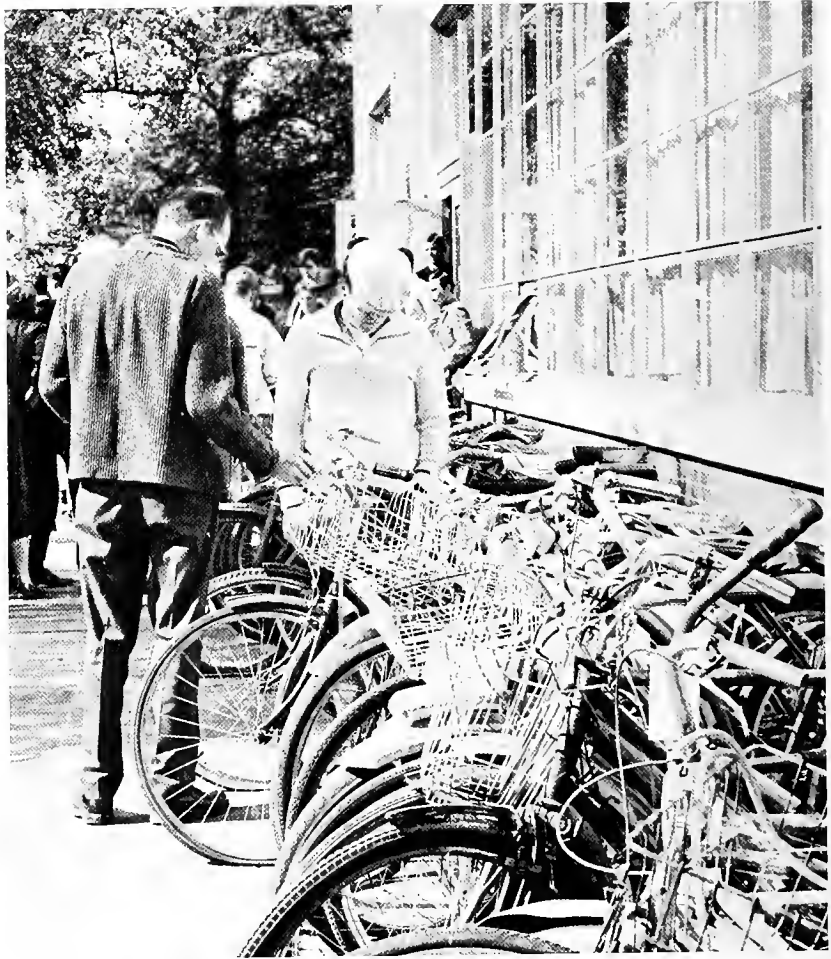

Abandoned Bicycles

A crowd of enthusiastic viewers gathered on the South Terrace of the Student Union impatiently awaiting the start of the bicycle auction on Saturday, October 9.

The fifty unclaimed bicycles, accumulated by campus police, had been declared officially abandoned.

Each prospective bidder was given a sheet listing makes, descriptions, and defects. "Auctioneer" Mr. Harold Watts, Assistant Coordinator of Student Activities, awarded the bicycles to the highest bidders.

Proceeds of the auction, sponsored by the Maroon Keys, will help provide for student scholarships.

Prospective buyers inspect the unclaimed bicycles.

University Theatre Presents

Season's First Production . . .

The Fantastiks

The wall of family pressure creates a fairy-tale love.

The University Theatre opened its fourth season with the fall production of The Fantastiks.

Directed by Mr. Harry Mahnken, Assistant Professor of Speech, this romantic musical comedy was received enthusiastically. Stars Ken Bordner, Mary Grace Pennisi, and Francois-Regis Klanfer drew rapt attention and appreciative applause from a capacity audience.

Drawing on a host of supporting actors, including Larry Wilker and Pat Freni, the acting company displayed professional talent in the execution of thespian skills.

Musical accompaniment, provided by Bruce MacCombie, added to the general effect in an extremely pleasing manner.

Homecoming-1965

The brothers of AEPI invite the UMass line to step forward and show their strength with their float theme, "Redmen, Ram it."

Homecoming Weekend, 1965 style, commenced with the traditional UMass float parade. This year, Beta Kappa Phi's imposing "Metawampe," Kappa Alpha Theta's "Eve of Destruction," Webster's "Locomotive-Injun # 65," and Lewis' "Little Bo-Peep Hemmed In" took top honors. Participants, ranging from marching rabbits to boys pulling penned-up sheep, added to the overall excitement.

Following the parade, students celebrated "The Death of a Ram" at the year's first bonfire and rally. The evening was highlighted by the crowning of Miss Anne Marie Creedon '66 as Homecoming Queen, and the presentation of her court. A dance in the S.U. Ballroom, featuring the Pied Pipers, ended Friday's activities.

Maroon Keys pitch in to prepare the Homecoming bonfire.

Homecoming Festivities Feature Stadium Dedication

One of the highlights of the '65 Homecoming festivities was the dedication of the new Alumni Stadium by President John W. Lederle and Governor John A. Volpe.

It was a proud day in the history of the University as President Lederle declared the stadium to be "not just a football field, but a symbol of our dedication to serving the entire Commonwealth in the best possible manner."

Alumni Stadium represents the culmination of many years of dedicated service to the development and growth of higher education.

As Governor Volpe stated, "Massachusetts, the first of the American colonies to build a college, is justly proud of this latest educational advancement. A total, well-rounded education must include not only mental and moral disciplines, but top-notch physical training as well."

The normally empty stands . . .

Alumni football captains tour the stadium in an antique car pre-game parade.

The colorful pre-game ceremonies were opened with a festive antique auto parade led by the UMass Marching Band.

Sunny skies set the scene for a beautiful autumn day. A highly spirited capacity crowd of 20,000 overwhelmingly approved the UMass Redmen's "scalping" of the U.R.I. Rams 30-0. After the game, students and alumni enjoyed the first annual Homecoming Buffet in a huge tent at Alumni Field.

At Saturday night's dance, Barry and the Remains and the Barbarians played to the enjoyment of more than 2300 students. While some UMies were dancing up a storm, others were trying to "break the bank" at the Casino sponsored by the Class of '67.

The Senior-Alumni outdoor buffet followed the exciting game.

The French Swingle Singers bridge the language gap with a repertoire of songs from classical to "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star."

Alpha Phi Omega sponsored Sunday's annual Homecoming Concert in the Cage. The French Swingle Singers brought smiles of pleasure to every face in the crowd. Music ranging from Bach to "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star" delighted everyone. The repertoire of Joe and Eddie, featuring gospel and rock & roll, capped what many felt to be the best Homecoming Concert yet.

Projected artist's conception of the all-new Fine Arts Building, showing the lower floor which will contain a theatre, symphonic hall, artist's studios, plus classrooms for the various departments.

Everytime we turn around, UMass has a new addition. The area that has been cleared behind SBA will become a four-lane highway—part of a peripheral road system separating the academic campus from the dormitories. Once the road is completed, there will be no cars on the academic campus.

North of the highway and west of SBA will be a grand mall—the main entrance to the University. To the west, in place of the old football field, will stand the new Administration Building.

Startling Changes Expected On

The view from the School of Business Administration now includes the Union and Goessman . . .

but in years to come, will be dominated by the majestic Fine Arts Building.

The County Circle dorms will be replaced by a four-lane highway connecting N.Pleasant St. and the Rt. 116 by-pass. To insure the safety of pedestrian students, an underpass will be constructed.

Adjacent to the pond will be the Fine Arts Building, designed so that it will change according to the time of day and the season as the sun moves across the sky.

Eight additional low-rise dorms will be built to complement the existing Southwest Complex. Three dining commons will help feed the more than 5400 students of the Complex.

A new Northwest Complex, comparable to the Southwest, is already planned to be built behind Halworth Hall.

Campus in Coming Years

In 1967, we can look forward to extensions on both Machmer and Bartlett.

Annual Blood Drive

Nurses obtain pertinent information including a blood sample at the Blood Drive.

Promoting increased cooperation among the different faiths represented on campus is the function of the University Campus Religious Council.

Representatives of the three major religions perform the executive functions of the Council. Newman Club, Protestant Christian Association, and the Hillel Foundations each send four delegates. Members of the other religious groups participate on the Council as associate members. The offices of the Council are rotated annually among "the big three."

Their most important project of the year, the Annual Blood Drive, was held on November 16, 17 and 18 and was co-sponsored by the University Women. Among the future plans are Council-sponsored lectures, symposiums, and service projects.

“Another Opening . . .

To Another Show”

Fred Graham (David Kidd) and Lilli Vanessi (Pat Kelley) display even tempers for the audience.

One of the show's dancers struts her stuff (below), while Kelley Schwartz flashes a puckish grin to the chorus from left.

"Kiss Me Kate," a classic musical that combines elements of Cole Porter and William Shakespeare, opened the nineteenth season of the Operetta Guild on October 22.

The show was concerned with the antics of a troupe of actors during a pre-Broadway run of "Taming of the Shrew." One of the actors, Bill Calhoun (Ray Poole), signed an I.O.U. for his gambling losses with the name of the star, Fred Graham (David Kidd). Fred, meanwhile, had sent a bouquet with a tender note to a pretty actress named Lois Lane (Kelley Schwartz). The flowers were given by mistake to Fred's co-star and hot-tempered ex-wife, Lilli Vanessi (Patricia Kelley).

During the performance, Lilli discovered the flowers were a mistake and vowed to leave the show. At that moment two gangsters (Steve Rosoff, Rick Kaplan), arrived to collect on the I.O.U. Lilli became their hostage so that the show could continue and make money to pay the debt. All ended well as Fred Petruchio tamed his shrew, Lilli Katherine. As the curtain fell, Fred commanded "Kiss Me, Kate" and Lilli obeyed.

The dialogue, written by Samuel and Bella Spewack, was adequate. The outstanding aspect of the show was the songs of Cole Porter. Show-stoppers were "Brush Up Your Shakespeare," sung in true vaudeville style by the gamblers, and "Always True to You (In My Fashion)," belted out in a pert, wide-eyed manner by Lois Lane. Other favorites included "Wunderbar," and "Were Thine That Special Face."

Contributing behind-the-scenes to the success of the production were: Joel Friedman, stage director; Paul Bartsch, musical director; Marilyn Patton and Sharon Jean Moser, choreographers; and David Ludlam, designer.

A Shrew Is Tamed

Miss Margo Marsten, chosen by a cadet board, was crowned. The 19-year old sophomore reigned throughout the remainder of the night, adding to the splendor of "Autumn Twilight."

The Goodell Library is the center of many students' academic programs and occasionally of their social activities.

Facilities available to students include an outside book return and reference, microfilm, copying, reserve reading, and periodical services. A large amount of study space is available to enable the student to take best advantage of these facilities. In addition to general study areas, specific ones have been made available for research work and honor projects.

To continue in adequately accommodating the more than 15,000 students who depend upon the library's resources, Goodell has future plans of addition and expansion.

Overcrowded Hatch Remains Hub Of University Activities

The Hatch is the center of a student's social life.

From buttoning as a freshman to farewells as a senior, the Hatch is the place to socialize. Here, the student meets friends, sips a coke, finds a date, or just relaxes.

Conversations range from Physics to hairdos to the overcrowded conditions at the Hatch.

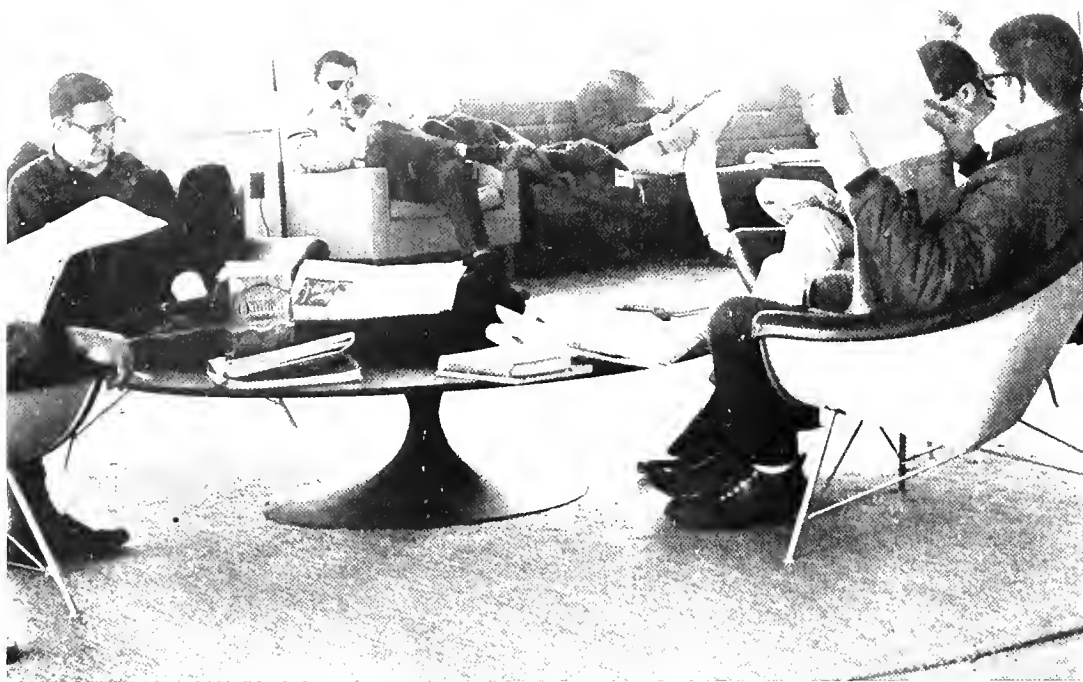

Many students go to the Hatch for their meals. While eating, they cram for night exams, borrow notes, or check to find the latest co-ed additions to the group.

The Hatch is an amalgam of student life. All types of people and motives are reflected in its activities.

Student Life

The center of intellectual, cultural, and recreational activities, the Student Union is an integral part of each student's life.

Services available include check cashing, post office, barber shop, and tickets for buses. Those looking for relaxation spend hours in the music and reading rooms while others enjoy playing pool and bowling.

The Hatch and Student Union store are the focal points of the lower level with the latter supplying everything from UMass night-shirts to course review books. The Lodge serves as a meeting place for commuters who want to relax, study, and eat between classes.

Upstairs on the balcony of the Union is the R.S.O. office which functions as a supervisory board for all campus activities. The offices of the major campus publications and of the Student Senate are also found here. Personnel of the program and calendar offices assist organizations in planning and scheduling of programs.

The Student Union Program Council plays an important role on campus. Its projects include biweekly music hours, the Union art corridor, weekly movies, dances, HER weekend, Meet the Professor hours, and lectures.

In addition, the Union serves as a year-round conference center for countless groups.

Participation

This year, the SWAP Conference was held during the weekend of October 22-25. Dr. Robert Stanfield, Assistant Professor of Sociology, and Dr. Mark Nofsinger, Coordinator of Student Activities, were the guest speakers.

Dr. Nofsinger addressed the Greeks on "Who's Listening," in which he emphasized that the Greeks are a minority group on campus; that they should consider this an asset to their system; and that they must analyze the organization to find the means to revive it.

The weekend prompted several heated discussions. The students held that there was a need for student participation in extra-curricular activities purely on the basis of interest and desire. In reality, they continued, many who participate do not do their work willingly. Often the most talented people, the officers, are left with the basic trivia.

Another discussion included the Four-College controversy. The main objective was to find the means by which the four colleges might share in more activities. The following points were discussed at the Conference: the area colleges should take advantage of the college buses running during the evenings; the extension of D.V.P. lectures to other campi; expense sharing of art exhibits enabling the four colleges to benefit from the now-restricted showins; and the rejuvenation of existing college radio stations.

Dr. Nofsinger concluded by pointing out that the administrators were enthusiastic about the proposed plans of this, the 1965 Student Workshop on Activities Problems Conference.

Dramatization of Richard Kim's The Martyred, Previewed

The Martyred was presented by the University Theater with the assistance of its playwright, Richard Greenbaum. The world premier play was based on the best-selling novel by UMass professor Richard Kim. Special lighting and added sound affects, backing up the excellence of the acting itself, combined to create the tragic mood of human conflict during the Korean War. Man has his own principles but also specific duties to his own cause. If the two should conflict, what then must man do? This was the question that the military officers and religious leaders of Korea had to answer; The Martyred is the story of their struggle to do so.

Chorale and Chorus Join Voices in Concert

The Christmas Story, a cantata by Peter Mennin, highlighted the joint performance of the University Chorale and Chorus in their Winter Concert which was presented on Sunday afternoon, December 12, in Bartlett Auditorium.

An entire selection of capella music was featured. The program, which was directed by Dr. du Bois, also included a madrigal, a folk-hymn, and several sacred songs.

The Madrigal Singers, formed from a group of interested students of the Chorale, concentrated on a capella and presented several selections which included "O La Buen Echo," an amusing piece of antiphonal singing.

A Christmas concert was also held at Belchertown High School by the Chorale.

Newman Concert Highlights

Christmas Activities

The third annual Christmas Concert of the Newman Center Choir was held on Sunday, December 12 in the Newman Center Chapel.

Schubert's Mass in G Major was the featured work of the Concert. This Mass was composed in 1815 by the eighteen year old composer and is set for soprano, tenor, bass solo, chorus, strings, and organ.

Mr. Giles Hebert, who has been organist and director of the Choir since 1962, directed the concert. Soloists included: Soprano, Ann O'Sullivan; Tenor, George Stillson and Donald McCarthy; and Bass Robert Roger Lebel.

The Christmas Concert brought an end to a weekend of Newman Christmas activities which featured a trim the tree party in the Newman lounge, an underprivileged children's party in Springfield, and the Living Rosary around the campus pond.

Newman Emphasizes Spiritual Growth

To promote the spiritual, social, and intellectual welfare of the Catholic student on the secular campus is the purpose of the Newman Club.

Directed by five officers and an executive board composed of eight committee co-chairmen, the Newman Club plans a varied calendar of events which encompasses all aspects of the student's life.

During the week all University students are invited to attend inquiry classes, philosophy classes, and discussions on current topics known as "Thoughts over Black Coffee." The Club also brings to the campus each month distinguished lecturers for its general meetings.

Social life is not neglected and the club sponsors dances, football trips, ski excursions to Mt. Tom, and outings.

Special events for the year include the annual Christmas Concert, the Christmas Living Rosary, open and closed retreats, novena of Grace, and the Communion Breakfast each spring.

The Protestant Christian Council is an interdenominational coordinating body composed of students of the five major Protestant denominations. It works in cooperation with the United Christian Foundation to provide a unified Protestant ministry to the student body at UMass.

Programs this year have included various lectures and panels discussing problems of concern to the Christian in a modern world.

An annual event is the Christmas Vespers program, which this year was highlighted by a dialogue of traditional Bible readings interspersed with words of modern poets on the Christmas theme.

Also participating were the Wesleyaires, a capella choir of the Wesley Foundation. The service, which was originally composed within the Council, provided a uniquely meaningful worship experience for the Christmas season.

Traditional Chanukah Party Sponsored by Hillel

Seated: Susan Webber, Regi Chase, Fred Lazin, Ellen Schwartz, Steven Hornstein.

Representing the Jewish students at UMass is the B'nai Brith Hillel Foundation. With the help and guidance of Rabbi Ruchames and their advisor Mr. Elkins, the officers and committee chairmen plan and carry out programs to meet the religious, cultural, and social needs of the Jewish student body.

A varied and active program including High Holy Day observances, lecture series, Sabbath worships, Deli suppers, bagel brunches, dances, movies, and classes in Hebrew beliefs and customs provide both pleasure and cultural stimulation.

This year, Hillel sponsored a Hanukkah party in the North Commons. Four of the four hundred who attended can be seen at the top of the next page. Avram Grobard, an Israeli folksinger, and the Zion Organization Choir sang Hebrew songs. There were also two Arab guests present. The traditional "latkes" with sour cream and applesauce were served as refreshments.

Service to Student and Community — The Orthodox Club

As a religious, cultural, and social organization, the Orthodox Club has a variety of activities. In addition to folkdances, fund raising projects, and a spring picnic, the club also features guests speakers on Orthodox theology. The group also participates in the Holyoke Orthodox Church Choir and spends time visiting hospital patients. As a member of the New England Federation of College Orthodox Studies, the club offers a great service to the students of the University and the surrounding communities.

Seated: Claudia Metrick, Nicholas Frangos, Sandy Topulas, Mary Anne Varoutsos, Secretary; Frances Bassil, President; Father Harry Vulopas.

JFK Memorial Library Concert

One of the most successful projects sponsored by the Class of '68 to date has been the JFK Memorial Concert, held in the Cage on Tuesday night, November 23, 1965. All profit from the concert were to be contributed to the John F. Kennedy Fund, for the JFK Room, a room which would be filled with "books written for Americans by Americans."

The program was opened by the Prince Spaghetti Minstrels, the only semi-folk group on the program.

Following the Minstrels were two groups from campus, the Boss Tweeds, and the Bold. Both groups were received enthusiastically, as they always are, as first the Boss Tweeds presented their act, followed by the slightly more polished group, The Bold.

To round out the already exciting evening, the featured performers took the stage. In their first college performance on the East Coast, the Beach Boys played to a capacity crowd of enthusiastic students.

As always, the sound system in the cage left a good deal to be desired, but in spite of the adverse conditions, the concert was a great success.

Students jam the ticket office to get their tickets for the Beach Boys Concert.

Nursing A Slight Ache is Walter Mosher.

Ted Buswick, the man from Bellac, argues with Chuck Interlandi, a stubborn clerk.

Roister Doisters, the oldest student organization at the University, presented for its 1966 productions three one-act plays: The Apollo of Bellac, by Giraudoux, Antigone, by Cocteau, and Pinter's The Slight Ache.

All three plays made use of the same basic scenery, even though they differed considerably in content and style.

Jane Melman and Ted Buswick played the leading roles in The Apollo of Bellac, a drama of fantasy which deals with the question of beauty.

Thespians Carole Willar, William Sibley, Patricia Cooke, and James Sargeant illustrated the universality of Antigone by adding a modern dialogue.

The thought provoking A Slight Ache starred Betty Corea and Walter Mosher.

No Snow Again yet Winter Carnival is a Success

This year for the first time, the UMass Winter Carnival was a weeklong array of events. These well-planned cultural, social, and academic activities were presented under the direction of the junior class.

Class of '67 president, John Mullen, his carni chairmen, and his executive board had been planning this week of exciting events for the past year.

Their creative planning expanded winter carnival to include a fashion show, a horror movie, a Distinguished Visitors program, and a halftime show at the University of New Hampshire basketball game. Also featured were the annual Winter Carnival Ball, a day-long ski-trip to Thunder Mountain, a pancake breakfast, a fireworks display, Stockbridge a Go-Go, and two concerts.

"Broadway Premiere" was the theme this year and bright lights certainly lit the campus for the entire week.

Events began on Monday evening with a "My Fair Lady" fashion show at Bowker Auditorium sponsored by a local clothing store. Coeds modeled and the five candidates for Winter Carnival queen were special guests. Accompanying the fashion show was a horror movie that featured three of Edgar Allen Poe's Tales of Terror.

Wednesday welcomed Robert Lewis, as part of the Distinguished Visitors Program. Director of On a Clear Day You can see Forever, Mr. Lewis offered information and criticism on actors, theories, and audiences.

The Redmen helped UMass to celebrate Winter Carni on Thursday night by defeating U.N.H. 104-66. Sectional cheering, the pep band, the Flying Redmen, presentation of queen finalists and agents from U.M.C.L.E. helped the spirit to abound.

Friday afternoon offered a surprise. What is that red thing sticking up through the ice from the cold pond water? A truck plowing the pond for the next day's activities cracked through the ice. This was the third time the truck took an unplanned winter swim.

. . . A Weekend Long Series of Events

Friends chat in brisk air about week's activities.

Couple views skating events.

Trophies were awarded to winners of winter sports events.

"Wonderful Town," the Friday evening ball, was highlighted by the crowning of Mary Halbert as Winter Carni queen by last year's queen, Sandy Olson. The queen's court included Jane Ceighton, Janet Jegelwicz, Jane Ludlow, and Sandy Crosetti. Couples danced to the music of Bobby Kaye and his orchestra in a New York nightclub setting.

A hearty pancake breakfast was sponsored by the Revelers at the Student Union on Saturday morning. The breakfast was scheduled to have been followed by the judging of snow sculptures. However, the depletion in the supply of snow left the campus with one lone snow sculpture. The brothers of Alpha Tau Gamma fraternity collected snow from various areas and built a fallen skier entitled "We slipped." This was the first snow sculpture since 1963.

Saturday night the Cage was filled to capacity for the first concert of the weekend. The concert began with the Rovin' Kind. The second group to appear was Simon and Garfunkel demonstrating refreshing showmanship both in their original songs and natural humor. They expressed delight to be appearing at Mass. Agricultural College. The final group to appear was the Four Seasons. With distinct sounds, they entertained the crowd with many of their old and new hits and certainly helped to light the Broadway theme.

Jane Creighton, Janet Jegelwicz, Sandy Crosetti, Jane Ludlow, Mary Halbert, John Mullen.

Following the concert, bright colors splattered through the sky as fireworks shot up from the campus pond.

Sunday afternoon brought forth the second concert. First, the versatile Modern Folk Quartet performed with clear voices and light-hearted clowning. Their folk-rock was received well by the audience. Next came Biff Rose, an easy-going comedian with a Southern accent and a natural flare for genuine humor.

Ending and highlighting the week was Glen Yarbrough who sang several renditions of old folk songs as well as his popular hits including "Baby, the Rain Must Fall."

Thus, after a week of wonderful and memorable events, the bright lights of the 1966 Winter Carnival dimmed.

DVP Brings Distinguished Visitors to the University

The University Distinguished Visitors Program (DVP), since its inception in 1959, has brought many outstanding national and international figures to the campus community.

The first American university organization of its kind, DVP is a student-run committee made up of students from the sophomore, junior and senior classes and representatives appointed by the Student Senate. Faculty, administration and alumni members serve as advisors.

This year DVP featured such eminent personalities as cartoonist Jules Feiffer, Senator Edward Kennedy, and science-fiction writer Isaac Asimov. In keeping with tradition, the committee also presented a symposium consisting in an extended two week study of Communist China.

Junior Senator from Massachusetts, Edward M. Kennedy is seen entering Bowker Auditorium for his address to the student body on the situation in Viet Nam.

The Student Senate

President Richard Dacey chairs a Wednesday night meeting of the Senate.

Senator Tobin waits to speak while Senator Greenquist has the floor.

An issue is debated by Married Senator Lou Gurwitz.

Few students realize the range of activities involving the Student Senate. A look at some of the projects the Senate has been engaged in this year will provide some indication of the Senate's scope.

A Student Government Conference was held in November. The conference was characterized by a lively exchange of ideas and was considered beneficial by the delegates who represented most of the state-supported schools of Massachusetts.

Bills were passed requiring dormitories to draw-up constitutions providing for the democratic election of residence hall officers and with provisions for the submission of a dormitory budget.

This year's Senate has been exploring many areas of student life; but perhaps the central theme of the year's activities is "student's rights." Problems concerning student wages have been investigated by the Services Committee. The Women's Affairs Committee has been working to abolish sign-out sheets and curfews for senior women.

Senators follow along with their copy of a bill as it is formally presented to the group.

The selection of counselors, the evaluation sheets of students by counselors, the management of J.F.K. Memorial Library Fund, the grading system, housing for married students, the campus humor magazine, and the site of the new medical school are all issues the Senate has dealt with.

The Senate has also worked to funnel the income received from the vending machines back to the dormitories. All the profits will go into a trust fund to be used for salaries for the administration of the program, athletic scholarships, and cultural and enrichment programs for residence halls.

If the Senate this year was a "students rights" Senate, it was also a Senate typified by marathon meetings. Few senators will forget the meeting that lasted until 3 A.M.

Many changes in the structure of the Senate might become too large for proper functioning under the present system of apportionment. Therefore, a sub-committee of the Student Government Affairs Committee was formed to investigate the advisability of changing the system.

Much controversy was centered on proposed changes in the Senate Executive Committee. A President's Council was set-up. At a Constitutional Convention, a bill was passed requiring the individual classes to budget their funds through their respective officers and Executive Councils.

The Senate was faced by the recurring problem of resignations again this year. The vice president and treasurer, plus a number of senators resigned from their positions for health and academic reasons. In response to the problem of the resignation of student leaders from various campus activities, the Services Committee has looked into the possibility of incentives or compensations for student leaders.

Van Meter's senator, Jackie Hall, makes a point.

Another area of great significance dealt with the relations between the Student Senate and the Faculty Senate. Both bodies have worked toward a greater amount of cooperation and understanding, especially regarding the Fine Arts Council and the Student Affairs Committee.

The aforementioned are only some of the activities of the Student Senate, however, they prove that the Senate is an integral part of the University.

The meeting is finally adjourned and the senators prepare to leave.

Senators Melanson and Flynn ponder the merits of a proposal.

Committees review a great deal of Senate business before it ever reaches the floor.

John Greenquist chairs a meeting of the Men's Affairs Committee.

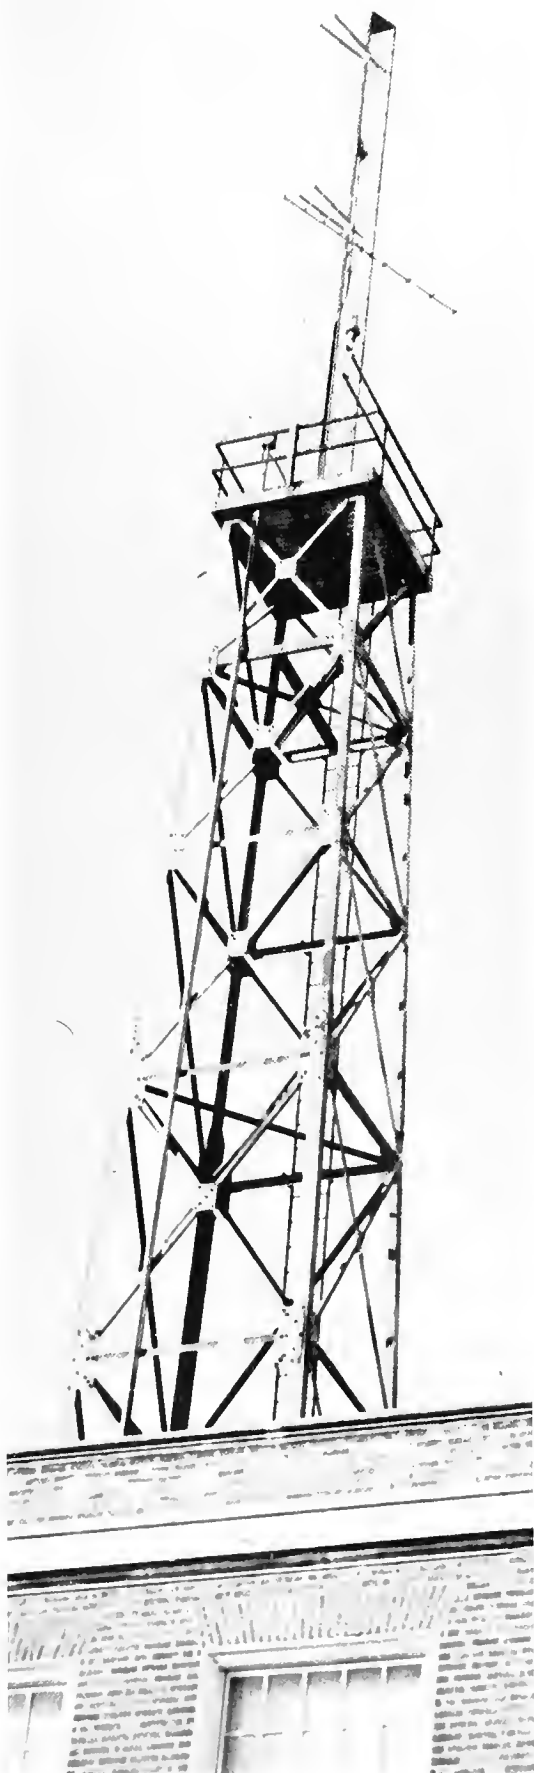

Delegates attend one of the workshops offered at the Student Government Conference.

Problems are discussed at a station meeting.

WMUA Serves Campus and Community

Staff members check latest UPI releases.

Broadcasting from professional studios in the Engineering Building, WMUA has proven itself to be a radio station of high caliber.

Its quality is evident in its record shows, which beam to the students the kind of music which they themselves, through WMUA programming polls have shown a liking for.

Add to this polling the great number of request shows on the air, and one finds a radio station that caters primarily to its listeners.

However, music is not WMUA's only merit. This year saw the rejuvenation of the old Pioneer Broadcasting System with live link-ups to the radio stations on the campus of Amherst and Mount Holyoke Colleges.

In this way, students hear not only what is going on at their own campus, but get an inkling into the events of other schools in the Four College Area.

A selection is made from their immense record library.

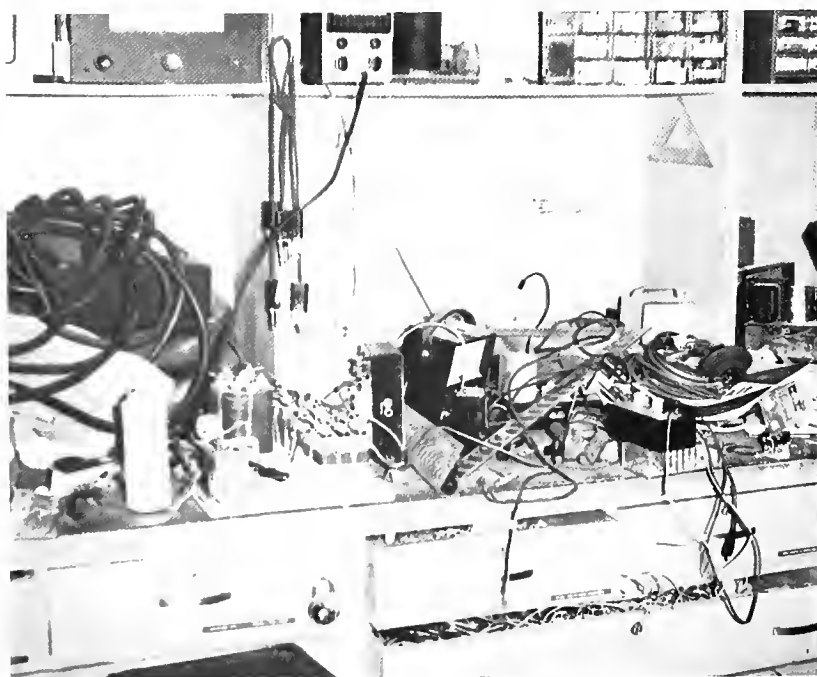

WMUA has more and more set a microphone to the world around it with fifteen minute broadcasts of news and sports, with lectures by distinguished guests, and with its invaluable publicity to many campus organizations.

Set on the 91.1 spot on the FM dial, WMUA has not placed its emphasis on commercial orientation, but has enlivened the educational radio diet with a well-rounded well-integrated program schedule.

WMUA, with its broadcasts from dormitory recreation rooms, has shown that the listener is on its mind at all times.

As their saying goes, "WMUA serving the campus and community with a great effort."

WMUA holds elections for officers.

THE MASSACHUSETTS

COLLEGIAN

The University is growing rapidly, and in time with its growth is the development and expansion of the campus newspaper, the Collegian. With first semester this year came new editors, new policies, and exciting new ideas.

More students on campus mean more news. The Collegian increased its average number of pages per week from twenty-four last year to thirty-six this year. There are three editions a week, at least one of which is twelve or sixteen pages.

The Collegian has a large and willing staff this year, and is able to give more extensive coverage to all events on and off campus. The news pages are filled with complete reports of Senate, Administration and Trustee meetings, as well as occasional interviews with campus personalities.

The student body is given an opportunity to air its views on campus, national, and world affairs on the two editorial pages. Stimulating articles and debates on almost any controversial subject are printed. Members of the editorial staff write outspoken and frank opinions on all issues that hold interest for the students.

This year the use of two-page photo spreads was increased to fully cover the more important events on campus, such as the world premiere of The Martyred. Although the most important aspect of these pages is the photos, news and editorials are also carried on the same pages.

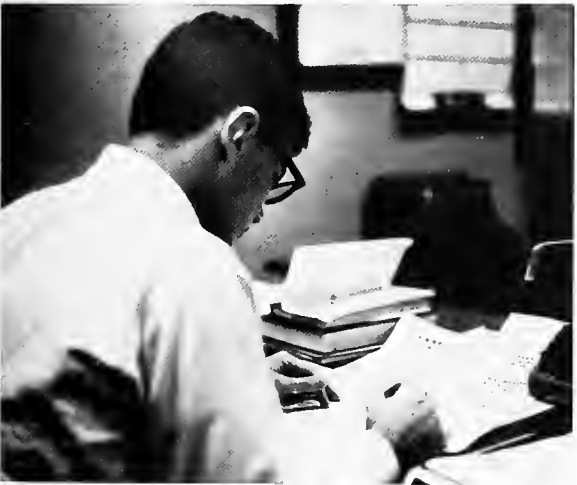

Peter Hendrickson, Editor-in-Chief

Dick Danca, Day Editor

Jim Foudy, News Editor, discusses layout problem with Marilyn Rozner, Day Editor.

Mike Gould, Sports Editor

Experimentation has been a key word at the Collegian office this year. The Christmas issue was an experiment in using four colors in a sixteen page magazine compiled by journalism classes with Collegian assistance.

There was a week of experimentation beginning December 5, when four papers were printed instead of the usual three. New styles of type were used in the headlines and the general make-up of the pages was new and more exciting. This chance to use new ideas and to break away from the standard procedures was so successful that it has been continued throughout this year and will continue in the years to follow.

Thomas Donovan, Feature Editor, with his assistant Lois Cohen.

Expansion and Improvement

Through Technical Aid

Al Oickle, Technical Advisor

This has been the year of the day editor system with separate but equal editors for each publication day working under the regular editors. This division of work and responsibility has resulted in different shadings of news judgment and presentation for each issue with the opportunity to give new ideas a whirl.

The business staff earned more money than ever to allow supplements, extra pages and fuller news coverage of the campus community, through an increase in advertising.

Steve Gordon, Advertising Manager

Mrs. Barry, Secretary

Ellen Levine, Managing Editor

Three editors went to a collegiate journalism conference in San Francisco and two editors attended the University of Minnesota summer school in special journalism courses.

One of the Collegian's goals has been to bring the academic departments closer to the extracurriculum using the newspaper as a vehicle. The classroom appears in the news columns and the editorial pages. The journalism department uses the newspaper as a laboratory and other departments are invited to participate in the experiment in journalism.

Summer school has become a third semester and the Collegian published two papers per week through the summer to continue coverage of the Medical School controversy and other important issues.

Growth, change and improvement are principles guiding the life of the University. The Collegian has also adopted these concepts as its motto. To the staff and to its 10,000 readers, the Collegian is an exciting and rapidly-growing adventure in news coverage.

and Hard Work

nineteen hundred and sixty-six

University of Massachusetts ♦ Amherst, Massachusetts

In a state of semi-lunacy, Editor-in-Chief John Lawrence contemplates an empty office, two days prior to the final deadline.

Managing Editor Alex Dean weighs the possibility of changing the general Index Editorial policy.

After two years as Index Business Manager, Mike Swartz contemplates the proposed changes from last year's yearbook.

And always, through the long day and the longer nights, there was Josephine, the Editor's faithful assistant.

The 1966 Index, as you see before you, is an immense task, requiring the talent and skill of a diverse group of University students. All editorial positions on the Index are held by undergraduate members of the University community, and are open to any student who wishes to apply.

The main object of each new Index staff is to produce a better yearbook than that of the staff of the year before. Sometimes it is able to do so and sometimes it is not. In the ever expanding University, it is becoming, strangely enough, harder and harder to find individuals who are willing to accept the responsibility of such a task.

To you, the students of the University of Massachusetts, we, the staff of the 1966 Index, present this year's volume, and sincerely hope that it will be accepted and enjoyed.

When the pressure was on, Associate Editor Elaine Corsi was always there to do her share.

Senior Editor, Claudia Willis, smiles complacently as other editors hurry to complete their sections.

Happy Hull slowly explains to an unseen student that Senior portraits were really taken three months ago.

Joyce Jackson, one of the few dependable non-editorial staff members, offers some advice to Ellen Klein.

In an effort to create a more perfect Greek section, Greek Editor Ellen Klein takes time to study several Greek candid.

Ann Kaplan, after two years as Massachusetts Life Editor, puts the finishing touches on her section.

Not to be outdone by the other members of the Editorial Staff, Jackie Beauvais (above) and Jay Stewart (below) work feverishly to complete Academic Life and Sports sections.

The only graduate student on the Index staff, Ken Gordon played an important part in the final publication of the book.

Caesura --- Forum for the Creative

Caesura, the UMass literary magazine, provides a forum for new and creative ideas by University students in the fields of poetry, fiction, essay, and art.

Three times a year material is solicited from undergraduate and graduate students. It is then reviewed, selected, and published by the editorial board of the magazine.

All manuscripts are coded by number, preserving the anonymity of the authors, and are judged according to the highest artistic standards within the capabilities of college students.

During the academic year 1965-66, Caesura has undergone an extensive re-organization in which the editorial board has been subdivided into autonomous prose, poetry and art boards each headed by an editor who comes under the general direction of an Editor-in-chief.

In addition provisions have been made to allow non-voting staff members to participate in the operation of the magazine in an auxiliary capacity.

With its innovation, Caesura promises to meet the demands of an expanding university and to separate the best work representative of the student generation.

From Lofty Heights, Modern College Humor

Yahoo, the campus humor magazine of the University of Massachusetts, remains within the top fifteen publications of its nature in the country.

As was learned in English 125, a Yahoo was a humanoid character in Gulliver's Travels, who lived in trees scorning mankind.

Three times yearly, Yahoo sketches University life with its satirical pens. Material is accepted from graduates and undergraduates.

University Critique Offers Twofold Purpose

Seated: Sharon Redfield, Business Manager; Cheryl Rohr, Secretary. Standing: Donald Weaver, Editor-in-chief; Manuel F.

Gordon, Managing Editor; Art Gillam, Editorial Editor; Art Cohen, Director of Research.

The goal of Critique is twofold; first through the use of student questionnaires, it attempts to provide an accurate and useful evaluation of the courses taught at the University; second, Critique serves as a guide to professors and faculty on the success of their goals and teaching methods.

Although it is supported without student funds, Critique, now in its third year of publication, is currently in the process of expanding. Instead of one issue each year, Critique anticipates publishing two issues a year.

In the future Critique will continue to provide an instructive and informative service to the students and faculty of the University.

Dave Gitelson, Peter Hendrickson, John Lawrence, Thomas Donovan, Ellen Levine.

SPECTRUM

Spectrum, the newest member of the family of campus publications, appeared for the first time in the fall of 1965. More than a new name for the handbook, Spectrum signifies a radical departure from the previous publication that had introduced freshmen and new students to the university.

Spectrum probes the intricate workings of the University for students and offers each member of the campus community an increased coverage of the many facets of UMass life. Topics explained range from where to get a beer to how to win an election.

In the future Spectrum will continue to reflect the growth of the University as well as to provide an interesting and informative guide.

ENGINEERING JOURNAL . . . A Scientific Guide

Professor John H. Mitchell, Advisor; John Sappet, Associate Editor; Owen B. O'Neil, Executive Editor; Walter Ros, Editorial Editor.

The purpose of the Engineering Journal is to publish scientific and technical articles by University undergraduates.

Published four times a year, regular features of the Journal include: an editorial, a message from the administration, a faculty sketch, and a section of student articles on new scientific developments.

With a circulation of 1600, the magazine is distributed to all Engineering, math, and physical science majors and is designed to aid them in their respective endeavors.

Adelphians Initiate High School Honors Program

Adelphia, the Senior Men's Honor Society, is the oldest honor society on campus, but at the same time is the most forward looking. Adelphians have established the tradition of initiating at least one worthwhile new program per year, as part of their contribution to the University.

An organizational revision of Homecoming Weekend manifested this year's step in the Adelphia continuum of progress. In the past, Adelphia has supervised Rally activities and queen selection for Homecoming, with the responsibility for other activities fragmented among various groups. To overcome the disorganization resulting from this lack of coordination, Adelphia recommended a campus-wide committee to serve as the controlling body for Homecoming. This proposal, complete with structural differentiation has been adopted for next fall.

Much of Adelphia's commitment for the year is given to projecting the University's profile into the high schools of Massachusetts. Semester break saw seven Adelphians presenting a slide and lecture program at schools near their homes. The slide program gives interested students a chance to see much of the campus, ask pertinent questions, and gain an insight into whether the University of Massachusetts fits into their plans for the future.

Springtime came, and the Adelphians fancy turned to thoughts of High School Honor Students Day. A revised program for this year's Honors day focused attention on high school English departments and their top students. Formerly a program aimed at familiarizing guidance counselors with University admission policy and informing better students of the opportunities of their state university, Honors Day has joined the age of specialization.

Working in cooperation with the University English department, Adelphia has established a program to acquaint high school students with the major in English and its potential, and at the same time inform their teachers of what the University English department expects of the incoming freshman.

This program, with its intrinsic potential for change from department to department, is a lasting indication of the ability and foresight of this year's Adelphians.

Mortar Board Honors Senior Women

Isogon Chapter of Mortar Board began on the UMass campus as a local group and joined the national organization in 1955. Each year on Student Leaders' Night, no less than five and no more than twenty-five senior women are recognized for their scholarship, service, and leadership.

Serving as the four advisors to Isogon chapter are: Dean Helen Curtis, ex officio; Mrs. John Lederle, Miss Nancy Rupp, and Mr. Armand De Grenier.

Initiating a successful year was a fall workshop held at Woolman Hill, Deerfield where new members became acquainted while discussing the purpose and aims of their organization. In addition the year's program of activities was decided upon.

Among the annual events sponsored by Mortar Board are the talks to freshman women, the scholarship tea, and a spring article drive for foreign students. They also aid in campus chest, provide an annual scholarship, and usher at various convocations.

As part of their special project with foreign students, Mortar Boards attend the weekly International Club coffee hours and sponsored a Christmas party and an April trip to the United Nations.

Student Judiciaries Serve as Disciplinary Boards

Mel Fisher, Allen Sarno, Sumner Davis, Edward Waterman, Chief Justice; Robert Johnson, Thomas Wardrop.

Men's Judiciary is a board of seven undergraduate men, three each from the junior and senior classes and one sophomore. When vacancies occur, new members are chosen by extensive interview with the Committee on Men's affairs and the present Men's Judiciary Board.

The Board meets weekly hearing all cases of misconduct except those which occur in the residence halls. The latter are handled by two area boards. Men's Judiciary also presides over any appeals which might arise from Area Board decisions.

Men's Judiciary with its responsibility to the student body believes that its recommendations are corrective rather than punitive with the interest of the student as the ruling factor.

Women's Judiciary is composed of five student members: two seniors, two juniors, and one sophomore. Members are selected by means of screening interviews and two campus wide elections.

As a board, Women's Judiciary handles all disciplinary cases referred from the dormitory house councils, and also serves as a board of appeals.

They combine with Men's Judiciary to form the General Court which deals with cases concerning the Constitution of the Student Senate.

Service Organizations Aid

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

Alpha Phi Omega, National Service Fraternity, was founded December 16, 1925 at Lafayette College, Easton, Pennsylvania. It is the largest fraternity in the world and its membership is comprised entirely of men who are dedicated to the principles of Leadership, Friendship, and Service.

The purpose and principles of A.P.O. are implemented through a program of service in four areas: Service to the student body and faculty; Service to youth and community; Service to members of the fraternity; and Service to the nation as participating citizens.

On the local level, a charter was granted to Kappa Omicron chapter at UMass on May 18, 1952. The membership is now comprised of sixty brothers, assisted by a number of advisors chaired by Prof. Alden P. Tuttle.

Last year one of the services to the campus was the presentation of benches outside the Student Union. Other activities of Kappa Omicron chapter include Book Exchange (with Gamma Sigma Sigma), Ugly Man on Campus contest, the Ride Board, Homecoming Parade, Homecoming Concert, Blood Drive, Foreign Students Convocation and Amherst Fair.

Scrolls Foster Freshman Spirit

Scrolls, a sophomore woman's honorary society, gives recognition to deserving women of the freshman class. Their primary purpose is to promote spirit and friendship among freshman women in the dormitories. Scrolls also encourage leadership, scholarship, and fellowship among all University women and foster college loyalty.

In its service to the University, Scrolls take part in the organization and execution of the Freshman Orientation Program, arrange Big and Little Sister programs, and promote dorm unity.

In addition, they assist in student elections, work on Campus Chest, participate in a volunteer program at Belchertown State school for the retarded, and sponsor money-making events for their annual scholarship.

Maroon Keys Guide and Advise Frosh

To meet and to advise freshmen is the main objective of the Maroon Keys, the sophomore men's honorary organization. During the past year they also ushered at concerts, raised money for scholarships, built rally bonfires, assisted at rallies and dances, and resumed the practice of meeting all visiting athletic teams.

In an attempt to re-establish the basic constitutional purposes of its organization, the Maroon Keys experimented with a new student-adviser program with last summer's swing-shift freshmen. This student-adviser approach to orientation will be the main one used in orientation programs in the future, thus by a strengthening of their original purpose the Keys have become a more important and necessary part of the University.

Revelers Promote School Spirit

Revelers is an honorary organization comprised of upperclassmen who are interested in promoting tradition and spirit on campus.

Although the candy-striped jackets and straw hats call attention to their presence at orientation, rallies, dances, and games, most of their work is not visible—people just feel the results.

Ushering, freshman ball, and Winter Carnival pancake breakfast, number among their other activities which are climaxed in the spring by the student-produced Campus Varieties.

Musigals Continue in “Crazy Rhythm” Tradition

“Crazy Rhythm,” the syncopated theme song of the Musigals, has become, in its five years of presentation, the campus and New England-wide trademark of this outstanding female ensemble.

Proud of their unusual combinations of four-part harmony, the Musigals regularly perform both on and off campus for such functions and organizations as the Interdorm Sing, Panhellenic Declamation, and the UMass-Boston Alumni.

Under the direction of Donna Pratt, the Musigals of '66 have worked hard to present both a varied and enjoyable repertoire to their audiences. With such popular selections as “Chim Chim Cher-ee,” and old standards like “My Funny Valentine,” the Musigals have won their way into the hearts of their listeners and the musical tradition of the University.

Musigals sing out at Christmas performance.

Statesmen Sing Out

The University Statesmen is a small men's singing group affiliated with R.S.O. The group has traditionally performed at a variety of functions both on and off campus since 1943.

Due to a major reorganization of the group this year, the members have been diligently rehearsing in preparation for a diversified repertoire, ranging from traditional barbershop to modern contemporary music.

Whether on or off stage, the members enjoy a common interest and satisfaction by expressing themselves through music.

Concert Association

The Concert Association program enables the student body and community to enjoy professional productions here on campus.

The 1965-66 season included such celebrities as: Jorge Bolet, Cuban-Americans virtuoso pianist; Tom Krause, superb Finnish baritone; the New York Pro Musica, a unique group of musical artists; The Paganini Quartet; Charles Treger, a brilliant American violinist; the Vienna Octet; the Marlboro Music Festival; and the Robert Shaw Chorale.

Thus with such presentations, students were able to enjoy the cultural advantages of a big city right on their own campus.

ANGEL FLIGHT

Angel Flight is an honorary service organization of University women which is sponsored at UMass by the Allan B. Bunce squadron of the Arnold Air Society.

Flight activity is carried out on the local, area, and national levels. Local projects included: decorations and ticket sales for Military Ball, hostessing for Homecoming weekend, Legislative Day and the Governors' tea. In conjunction with the Arnold Air Society, the Angels have established a volunteer program with the Belchertown State School for the retarded.

On the area level, the flight was elected honor flight of Area A-1 for 1965 and served as area headquarters this year.

Thus through its many activities, Angel Flight aids the progress of Arnold Air Society and serves as a symbol of appreciation for the importance and dignity of Air Force life.

The Arnold Air Society is a national extracurricular organization available to Air Force ROTC cadets and dedicated to the advancement in both national and local interest of the Air Force and AFROTC program.

Arnold Air Squadron here at the University has recently been changed in name from the John P. Granville Squadron to the Allan B. Bunce Squadron in remembrance of an Arnold Air Cadet who was recently killed in an auto accident.

Activities include: NCO Academy, Boy Scouts, Civil Air Patrol, High school visitations, Military Ball, Belchertown State Hospital, ushering, and Cadet wing dining in ceremonies. The result of these activities, plus AAS meetings, is the development of esprit de corps among the cadets.

Working in unison, all the members of the Society, share the mutual objective of promoting and furthering the purpose, traditions, missions, and concepts of the Air Force.

International Club Promotes Friendship

The promotion of friendship and understanding among students of foreign countries is the purpose of the University International Club.

Weekly coffee hours help UMass's 260 visitors to the United States become integrated into campus life. It aids them in meeting one another and also in becoming better acquainted with their American hosts.

This year's executive board, under the direction of President Alladin Hashim from Malaysia, has brought many new activities to the club. Highlights of the coffee hours have been the "Land and People" series. Of campus-wide interest have been the Round Table discussions which feature topics from political controversies to dating customs.

Other special events included an International Food Fiesta, an India night, four college mixers, and an International Ball.

Students from all over the world become acquainted at weekly coffee hours.

Guests sample some of each dish at International Pot Luck Supper.

Dance Club Stars in "The People Yes"

Weekly workouts include strenuous exercises.

The Modern Dance Club under the supervision of Miss Georgia Reed, performed this year for different community organizations in the Amherst area. On March 18th and 19th, the Annual Spring Concert was held in Bowker Auditorium. Based on selections from Carl Sandburg's "The People Yes," the choreography of the program was done completely by the students.

As well as performing, the club travels to different areas to see other dance and professional groups. Last April, the club sponsored the Marien Rice Denishawn Dance Group. They gave a lecture-demonstration on the original works of Ted Shawn and Ruth St. Denis, the father and mother of Modern Dance.

For the first time in the history of the UMass Judo Club, coeds have been encouraged to participate in the club's activities.

Judo Club in the Throws of Change

The Judo club, under the direction of Robert Giglio, meets three times weekly in Boyden Gym.

Various colored belts reward skill in judo and are obtained by men demonstrating their skill in actual combat during competitions held every year.

Girls too may now become a part of the judo picture. This year, for the first time in the club's history, ambitious and sporty coeds enjoyed judo lessons, while benefiting at the same time from the exercise and physical conditioning.

Girls also may compete for colored belts. Their tests consists in a demonstration of their knowledge of techniques, and of throwing and falling rather than of actual combat.

A varsity judo team is predicted for the future as UMass attempts to keep up with other colleges.

Heymakers Continue Square Dance Tradition

An enthusiastic group, the Heymakers Square Dance Club enjoys and promotes square dancing on campus. The group is open to all members of the university community and also includes students from the nearby colleges.

Meeting once each week, the group spends half of its time together teaching beginners, while the second half of the meeting is spent in more advanced dancing.

This year the Heymakers sponsored the annual Inter-Collegiate Folk Festival. This event included many types of folk and square dancing with dancing groups from colleges throughout the New England area participating.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB

To give the students a chance to use the university Morgans, and to promote interest in horses and horsemanship is the purpose of the Equestrian club.

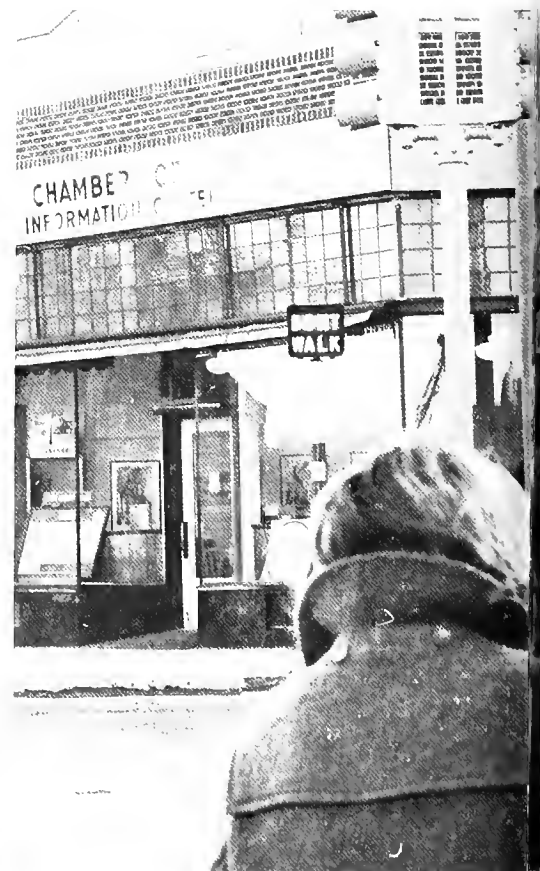

Membership has grown to approximately 150 members with one honorary member, Mrs. John Lederle. A riding instructor is available throughout the school year so that any member may have free instruction.

In addition to the riding which the club does, it also sponsor a program whereby retarded children from the Belchertown State school come to the university twice a week for riding instruction.

Traditional Start — Champion Finish

UMass hopes for retention of the Yankee Conference Beanpot were quickly crushed in the season opener against Maine. Pre-season forecasts had matched the Redmen and Maine as toss-ups for the Beanpot.

Although statistically UMass excelled over the Bears, the final score was not indicative of these facts. Led by versatile quarterback Dick DeVarney, the Bears consistently penetrated the much heavier Redmen line. Offensively for the Redmen, Greg Landry in his varsity opener completed 12 of 21 passes, passing for the lone UMass score late in the fourth quarter on a 46 yard play to Milt Morin.

In the home opener against the AIC Aces, the Redmen wasted little time in proving their superiority. Landry scored two TD's on lone runs and passed for two more to big 82, Milt Morin. The final score read UMass 41, AIC 0.

The following week the Buffalo Bulls set the pace with two first period touchdowns—enough to give the Bulls a coast home victory over an outclassed UMass squad. Greg Landry hit Dick Benoit for the one Redmen score with no time left on the clock in the first half. Buffalo capped the scoring with a fourth period TD to insure their victory, 18 to 6.

Spoiling UConn's homecoming hopes, UMass overcame a half-time deficit of 7 to 0 with three second half touchdowns. Outstanding on offense were Phil Vandersea and Bob Detorre while Ed Toner and Bernie Dallas constantly harrassed the Huskies back-field on defense.

A big fourth quarter catapulted UMass over a stubborn URI team before a stadium packed Homecoming crowd. The Redmen scored their first touchdown as Landry sneaked across in the second quarter. Detorre, Benoit, and Lewis concluded the Redmen scoring in the second half as Morin added the extra points plus a 30 yard field goal.

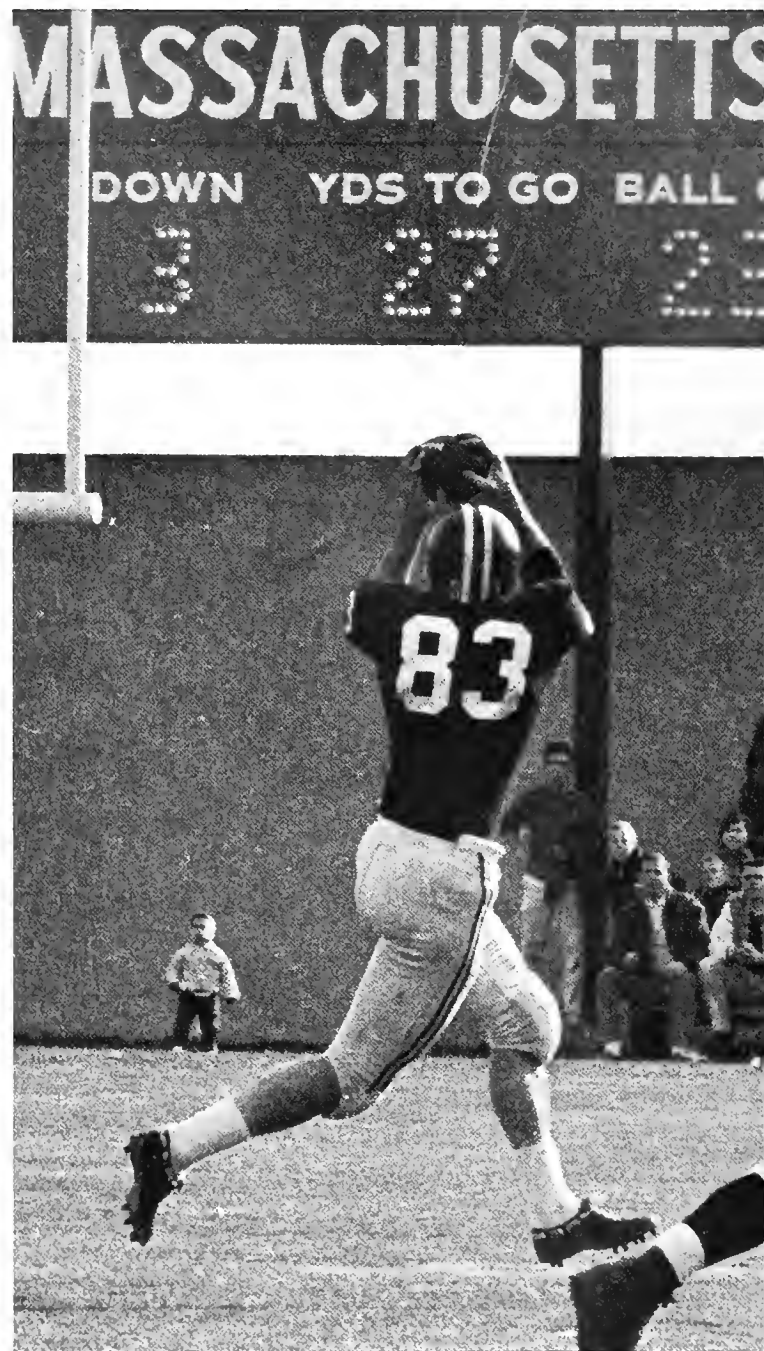

At Boston another UMass traditional second-half comeback gave the Redmen a sweet 34 to 18 victory over the BU Terriers. Initially down 12 to 0, the Redmen responded with three third period touchdowns and one in the fourth to cap their third win of the season.

Vermont proved no match for the rolling Redmen. A spectacular aerial show by sophomore quarterback Landry spelled a 41 to 6 victory for UMass.

The Redmen's fifth win in a row came at the expense of Holy Cross. A home crowd of 17,400 witnessed the Redmen's best game of the season. Senior co-captain Bernie Dallas initiated the scoring by picking off a partially blocked punt in the second period and racing for a 26 yard touchdown. Vandersea, Landry, and Lewis each scored touchdowns in the second half as UMass triumphed 27 to 0.

At UNH the Redmen went on a record breaking spree in a 46 to 0 victory. Landry set a Yankee Conference season passing record with 899 yards, and a total season offensive record with 1283 yards. Split end Bob Meers set a Yankee Conference record for season receptions with 28, and now holds the UMass record of 39.

Much credit must be given to Coach Fusia and the football staff for a successful 7 and 2 season. The outlook for next season finds many returning lettermen and the prospects of another winning year.

1965 Cross Country

The UMass cross country team completed its 1965 season with a sub-par 4 and 6 record under head coach William Footrick.

In the season opener, the Redmen were badly beaten by Northeastern 46 to 15, and lost a squeaker to Maine 28 to 27. UMass defeated UConn and Boston College in the next two meets, and back-to-back victories over U.S.C.G. and Rhode Island late in October rounded off the Redmen's season win record.

At the Yankee Conference Meet, the Redmen finished third out of six teams. In the New England's competition, the X-country boys finished 11th out of a field of 20 teams.

Next season the Redmen will be bolstered by a strong returning squad of lettermen, and will most definitely be in contention for the Yankee Conference crown.

1966 Soccer

The University of Massachusetts and Vermont, who shared the Yankee Conference Title with Connecticut, dominated the 1965 All Conference team. Coach Larry Briggs' Redmen placed five men on the mythical team, goalie Larry Martin, fullback Ray Yando, halfbacks Dick Hale and Mike Russo, and high scoring inside left forward Bill Burgess.

The Redmen, after a menial start, went on to win their final five games of the season and to clinch the Yankee Conference tie by downing Vermont 2-1 in the game of the year for UMass.

The Maurice Suher Most Valuable Player Award went to senior William Burgess who led the team in scoring with 10 goals. Speed and an educated head were his stocks in trade as he exuded confidence and had the knack of being in the right place at the right time.

Senior captain Raymond Yando, 1965-1966 All American, combined determination, confidence, steady play, and many other talented facets which made him a peerless leader.

Losing only two senior lettermen from graduation, Coach Briggs can all but expect a strong squad of returning players for next year's varsity soccer season.

WINTER SPORTS

Win or Lose . . . Colorful Year

The UMass Redmen basketball team finished the season third in the Yankee Conference with a slightly disappointing overall record of 11-13.

At times the team looked like champions, while on other occasions, they played unimpressively. Win or lose, the Redmen were crowd pleasers. A few more breaks may have precipitated a more impressive season.

Coach Johnny Orr and assistant coach Jack Leaman faced a handicap from the first of the season—a lack of both height and weight. Rebounding suffered, and as a result UMass game scores were limited. Orr and Leaman did an outstanding job even with this handicap, and the team deserved a better record than they finished with.

Speed provided the Redmen with an alternative to height. Clarence Hill led the team in this respect and also in his 24.1 average. The 6'1" senior set a UMass all-time career scoring record of 1369 points and a season record of 554 points. Jim Babyak (17.7 average) emerged as a point-getter as did soph Billy Tindall and soph Gary Gasperack. Another steady performer was Frank Stewart.

The season started with an exciting 65-49 victory over B.U. A thrilling 61-60 victory over Vermont followed. UMass absorbed its first loss when powerful Rhode Island defeated the Redmen 94-67. Back-to-back wins over Northeastern and Holy Cross took UMass to Blacksburg, Va. for the VPI holiday tournament.

Playing impressively in the South, the Redmen put out 100% but were nipped by superior Virginia Tech and Alabama. Travelling north the tired Redmen dropped one to Rutgers and then to Fairfield 100-82.

A win over AIC, a loss to powerful Providence, and a win over New Hampshire took the "roundballers" into exam break. Second semester opened with a 107-77 trouncing over Colgate, then a devastating defeat at the hands of Syracuse 114-72.

UConn trounced the tiring Redmen in a runaway game. After another victory over Vermont the Redman lost to B.C. 101-80; Rhode Island 88-64; and to Maine 70-63. Then UMass again demolished U.N.H. and were trounced by UConn.

A thrilling loss to N.I.T.—bound St. John provided an exciting home game. The campaign ended with victories over Holy Cross and Maine.

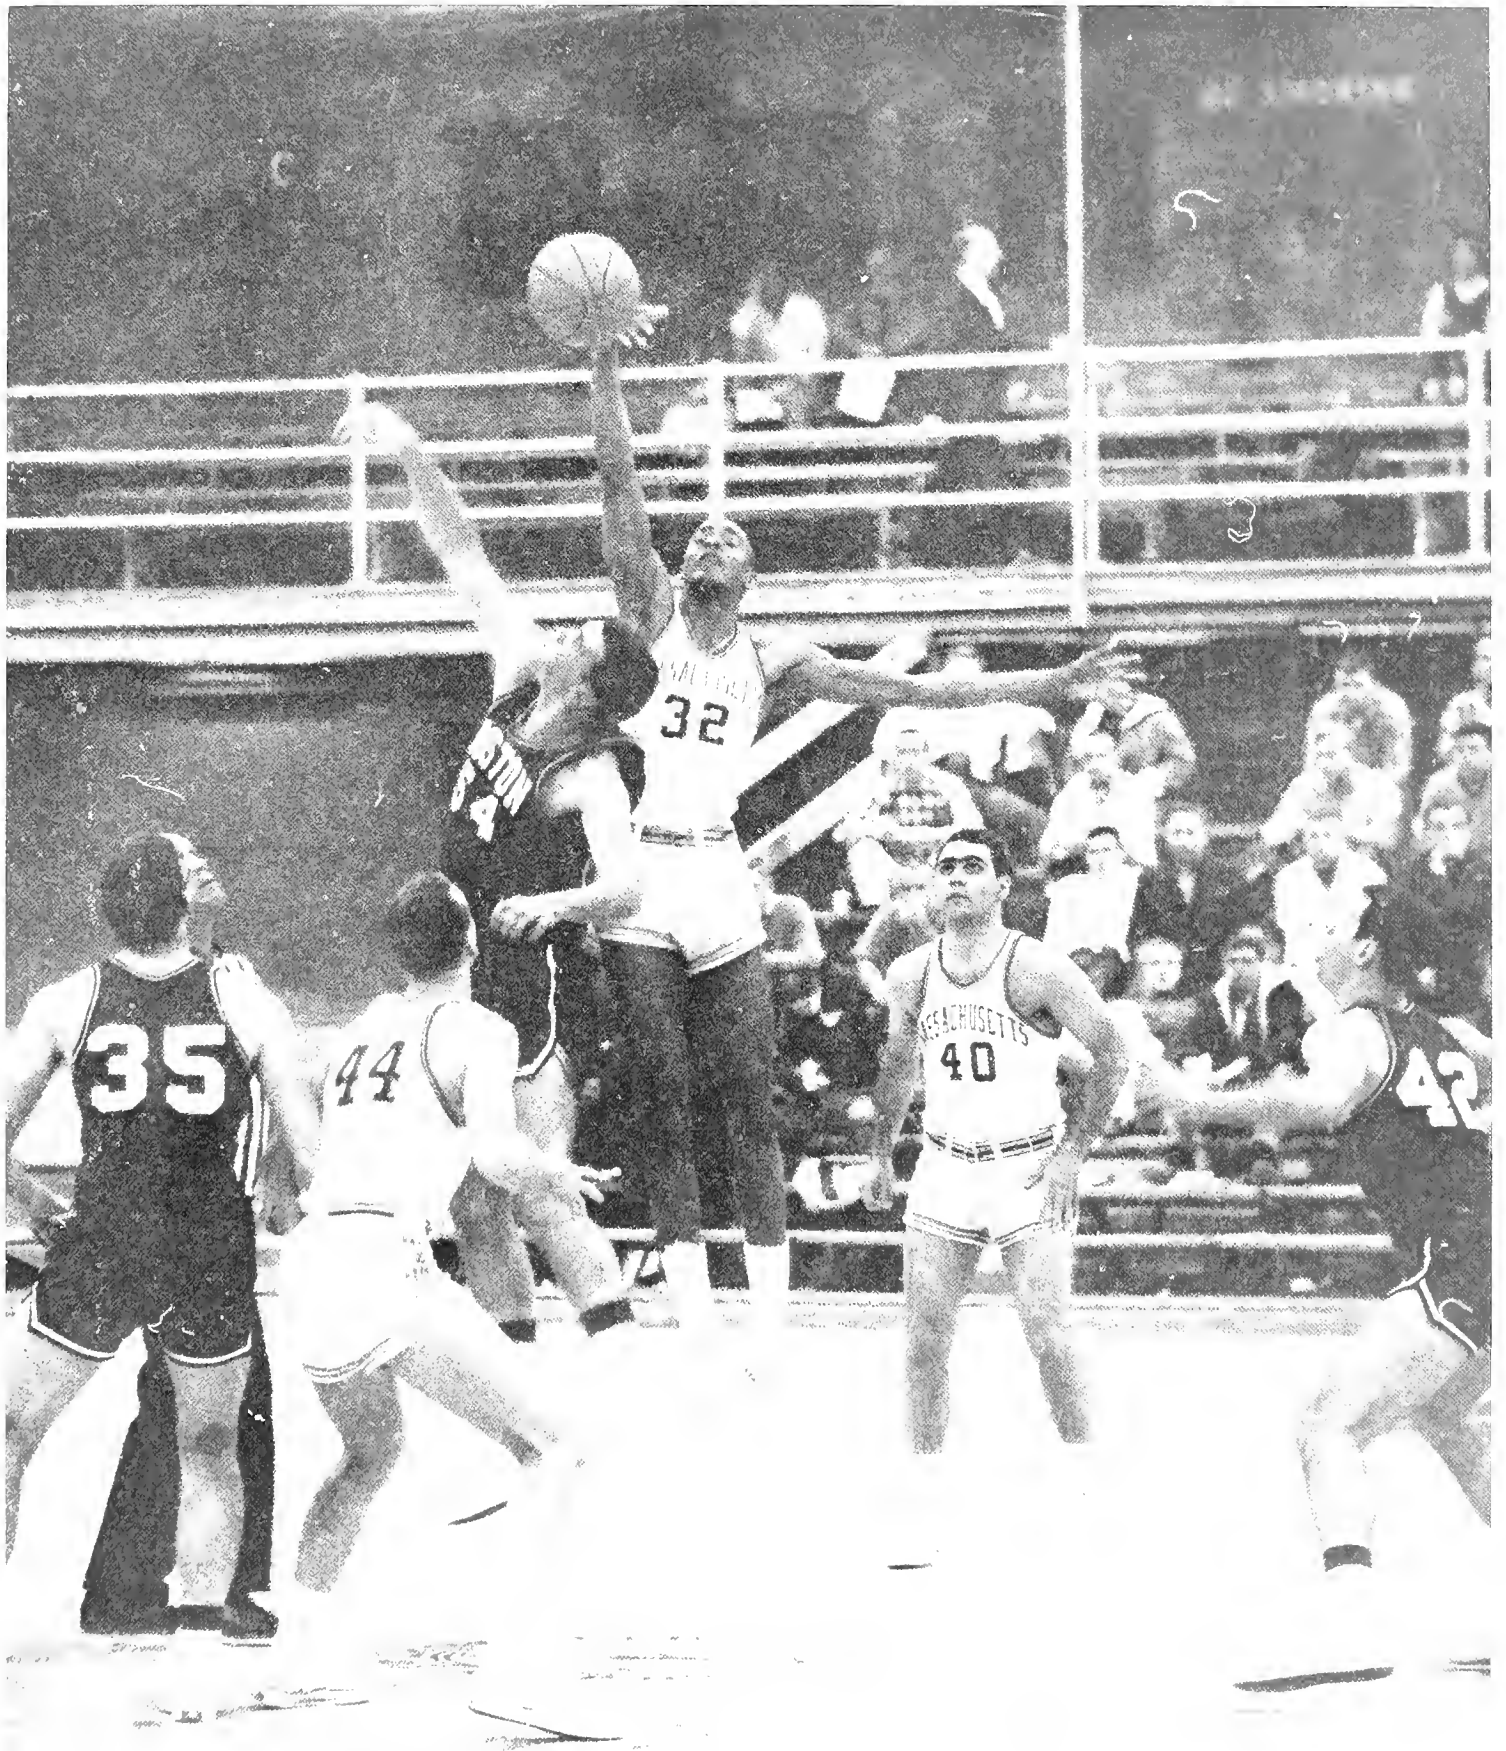

After the last game, Coach Johnny Orr resigned. He did a good job despite his 11-13 record considering the team's lack of height and will be missed around UMass.

Lack of Experience Hurts Gymnasts' Record

... Kasavana with a winning back flip.

Coach Erik Kjeldsen's Redmen gymnasts finished the varsity season with a 2-7 record defeating only Pittsburgh in the home opener and Southern Connecticut in another home meet.

Although unimpressive at first glance, the Redmen must be credited with competing against the nations best gymnast teams. UMass faced national powers such as Army, Navy, Penn State, and Syracuse. Also, hampering the over-all team effort was a lack of depth on this year's squad. Two seniors, Al Cohen and Dick Carliff, anchored the Redmen throughout the year.

Coach Kjeldsen viewed this past year as a learning year for many rookie sophs who next year, he hopes, will contribute significantly to the team effort.

In the Eastern Inter Collegiate Gymnastics League, the Redmen came in seventh out of the eight teams competing. There were two Eastern League medalists for UMass: Al Cohen placed fifth in the long horse while sophomore Steve Brown placed sixth on the parallel bars.

Tri-captains Al Cohen, Dave Lizzotte and Jim Dusenbury led the squad throughout the varsity year and contributed to the teams competitive spirit and drive. Next year will hopefully prove to be a more productive one for the varsity gymnasts, and with a few breaks should prove to be a winning season.

Matmen Break Even for the Year

This past winter the wrestling team began its season at the Coast Guard Tourney and finished at the New England Intercollegiate Championship at M.I.T. The team completed the season with an even record in dual meets, scoring five wins and five losses.

Although there were many new men on the varsity this year, the ability to win was due to the rigorous training program of Coach Irving Hess.

Among the returning varsity wrestlers were Co-captains Dave Kelley and George Darling and Intercollegiate champion Jesse Brogan. Also returning were Art Keowne and Ralph Caisse who aided the returning varsity in scoring most of the winning points. Among the new men were Gary Lefort, Bill Hienold, Steve Clegg, Ed Toner, Bernie Dallas, and Gene Smith.

Although attendance was small, those who watched enjoyed the many skills of Jesse Brogan and the speed of George Darling. Dave Kelley maintained his record of being undefeated in four years of dual competition using the speed and strength that earned him a trip to the Nationals.

At the New England Tournament, Brogan retained his title by pinning his Springfield opponent, and Kelley and Caisse took second place in their respective weight categories. Brogan and Kelley attended the Nationals where they did exceptionally well, competing against the best wrestlers in the country.

The team should be in good shape for next year since many of the varsity will be returning, and the freshmen have some excellent men. The University should look forward to another year of interesting collegiate wrestling.

Puckster's 3-11 Record

The varsity hockey squad, skating for the first time in an enclosed rink, fell victim to lack of depth, and excess of overtime as they suffered a losing season.

The team's "Heinz" line composed of Polchlopek, Skowyra, and Eaton provided the punch this season, accounting for 38 of the team's 68 goals.

Highlight of the season was the Amherst Invitational Christmas Tournament, sponsored by Amherst College.

The Redmen couldn't seem to get going against the "easy" teams on the schedule, but against the perennial powerhouses they made their best showings.

A 6-5 overtime loss to the powerful sextet from UNH marked the fifth time during the season that the pucksters had been unable to "click in the clutch" in overtime contests. Other sudden death decisions included two losses to UConn and one each to Hamilton and Amherst.

The Yankee Conference Tournament, held in Snively Arena at Durham, New Hampshire, saw the UMies fall to UNH 14-1 and UConn 6-5 finishing at the bottom for the second straight year.

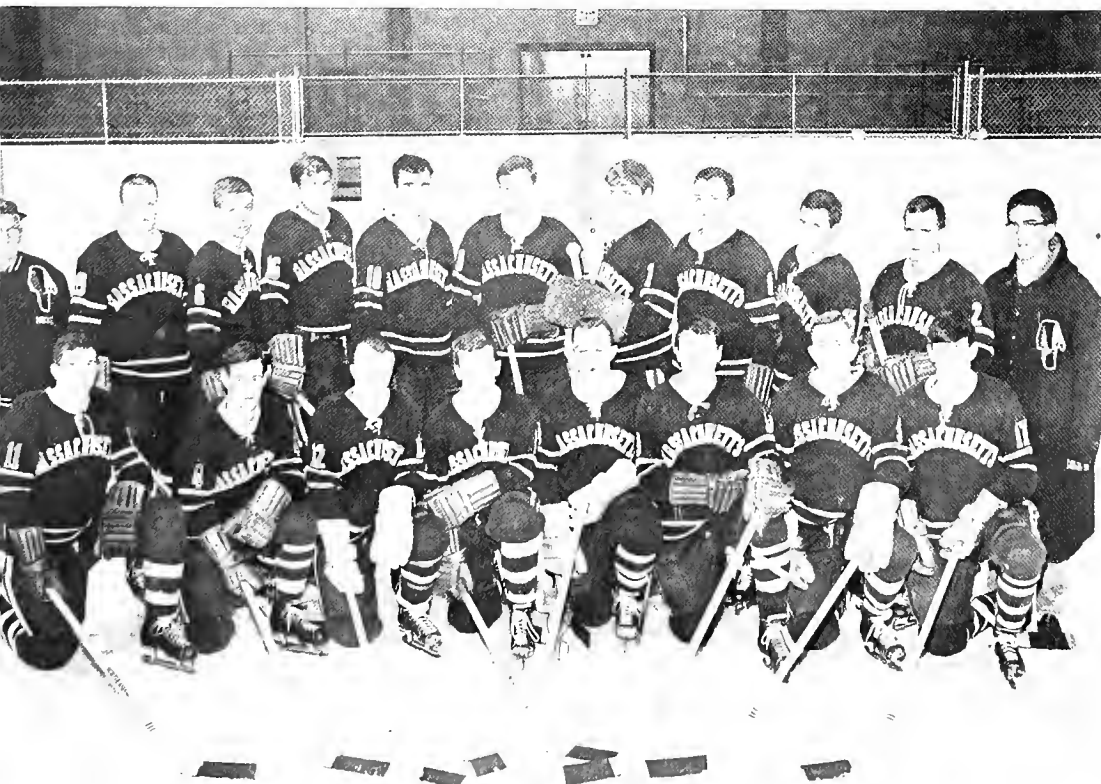

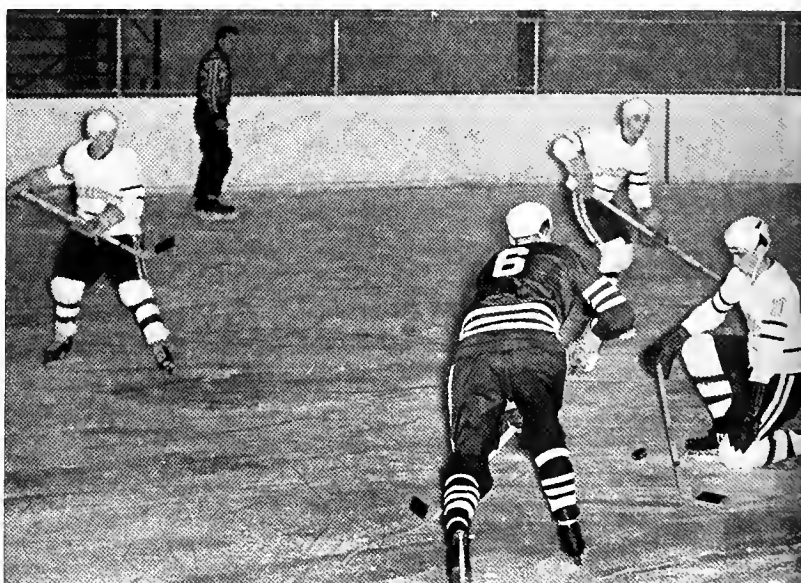

Goaltending was divided between sophomore Bob Eddy and junior Ed Sanborn. Sanborn turned back 27 shots in the Redmen's only shutout as the pucksters skated past MIT 11-0.

Graduating seniors Ken Demars and Rick Feldhoff, defensemen, and Peter Celi, center, will be missed but the seasoned juniors and sophomores and a promising group of freshmen guarantee a better showing for '66-'67.

Mermen end Average Season

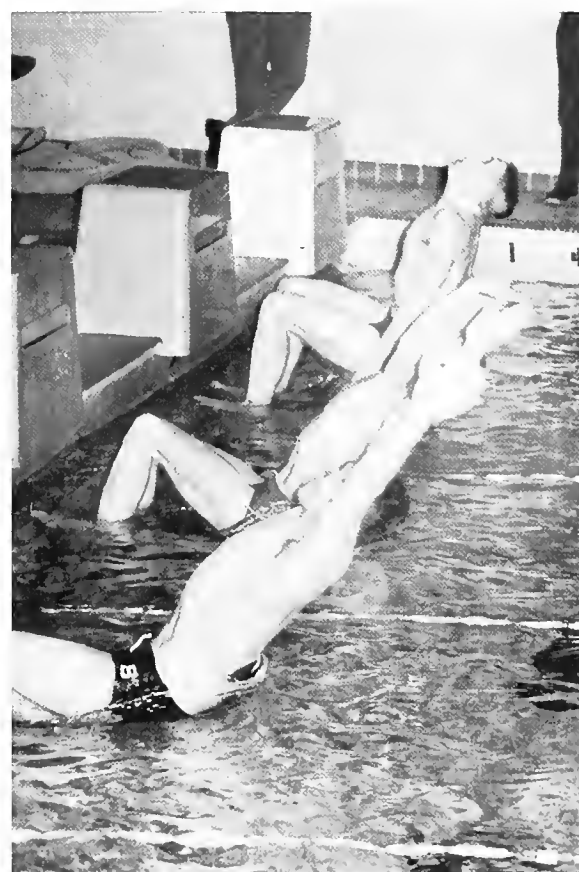

The UMass mermen ended their varsity season with an average 5-6 record. As three meets were lost by only a few points the record is actually not indicative of the teams potential.

Co-captains Dick Daniels and Frank Wilson led the team throughout the year. Daniels specialized in the 200 and 500 freestyle while Frank Wilson proved an outstanding performer in the 100 freestyle.

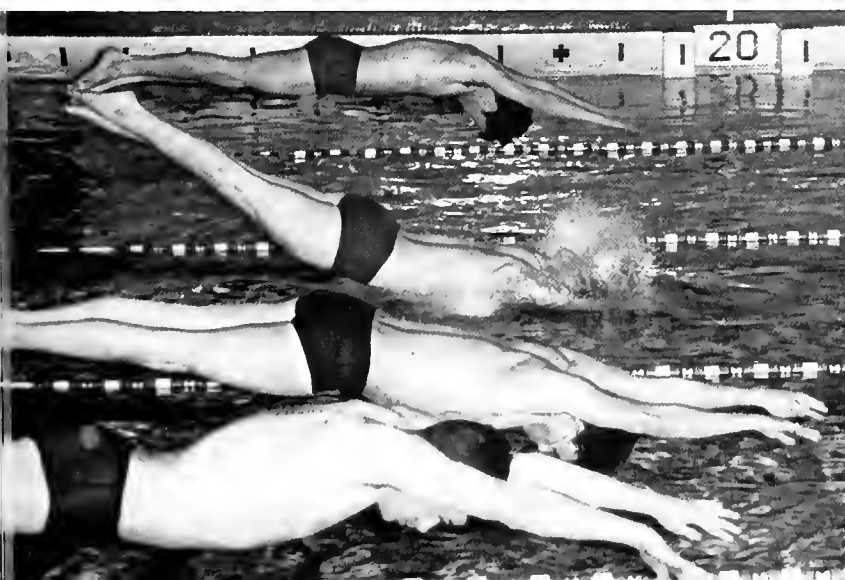

The mermen's best meet of the year proved to be against arch-rival UConn.

Dick Lennon set a record in the 200 breaststroke while Ken Nowak set a 200 backstroke record. Chip Wyser swam the 50 and 100 freestyle, Ted Severn the 200 breaststroke, Bob Rapaport and Norm Lovitch the butterfly, and divers for UMass were Tony Roubound and Dick Diandrea.

Coach Joe Rogers and the mermen are looking forward to next season, to a more improved squad and a better over-all record.

Plagued by inexperience, the Varsity Lacrosse team compiled the worst record of any Lacrosse team at the university since 1955, when the first Redmen team lost seven games, tied one and couldn't come up with a win.

In the season's opener the team looked as impressive as it did in any other game all spring although it was in a losing cause. Wesleyan had an experienced squad that had lost few lettermen from their New England Championship team of the previous year.

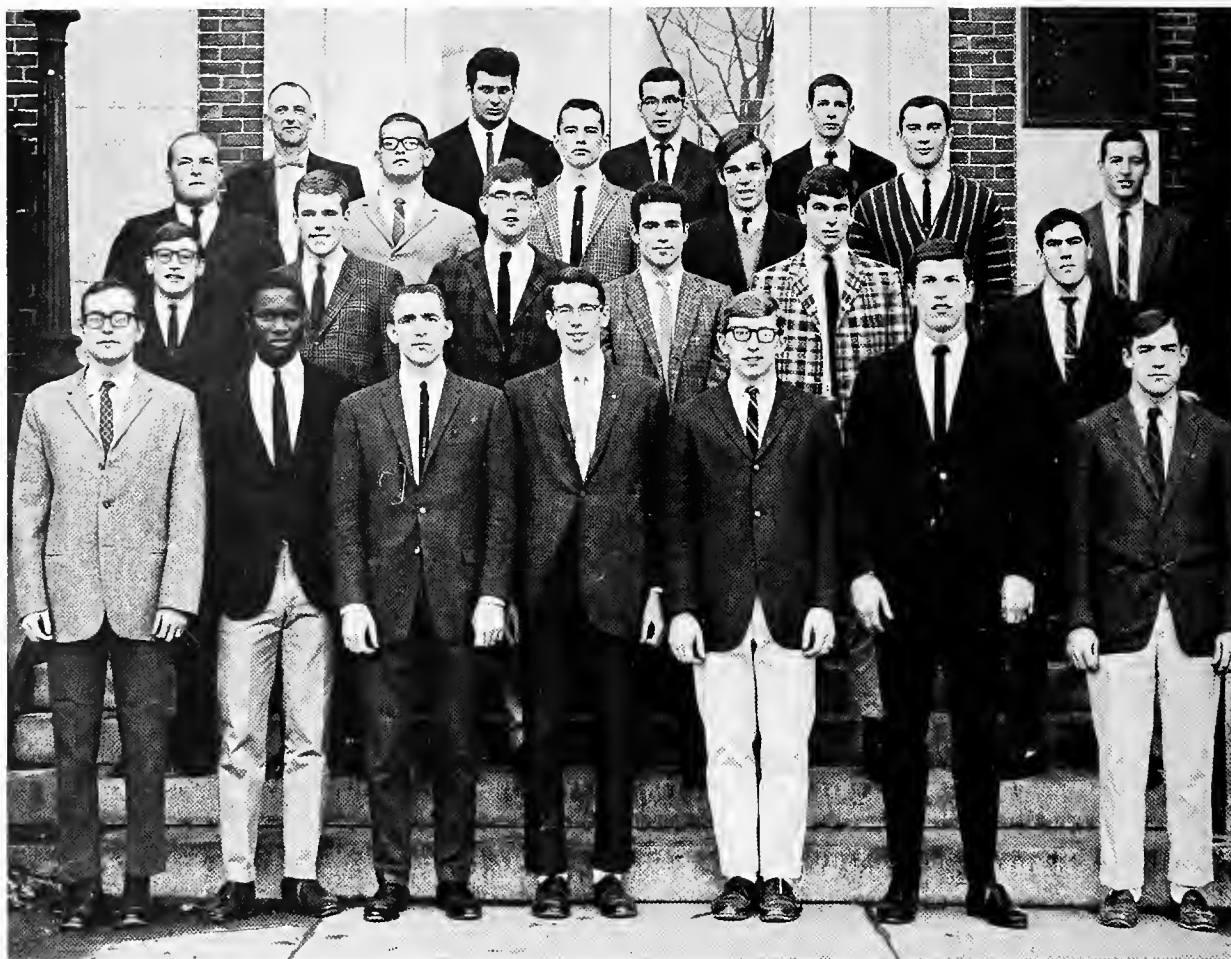

Wesleyan scored four quick goals in the first period to the Redmen's one. The Redmen fought back but they just could not manage to get the lead. The closest they came was a 6-6 tie early in the third period. This game pointed out the main problem for the 1965 edition of the Lacrosse men: the defense was practically non-existent.

The snakebeaters won their next game from Sienna, but then followed a string of seven straight defeats. During this long period without a victory the Redmen offense led by team Captain Dick Brown, Dave Jarret, Tony Arnieri and Dick Pulsiver, with his patented power shot, never gave up. This offensive unit scored 9 more points than the 1964 team, which had a 6-5 record. However, the defense gave up 46 more goals than the 1964 team did.

Some degree of satisfaction was attained for the season's indignities with a 17-6 rout of W.P.I. in the second-last game of the season. Dartmouth completely shattered Redmen hopes for at least a happy ending to a disastrous season by humiliating them 14-2.

Revenge is the theme for next season as most of the lettermen from last season are returning. Only two lettermen have been lost through graduation. The team has ample experience and motive to return the UMass Lacrosse team to its winning ways.

Few Bright Spots in Track Season

The UMass Outdoor Track Team showed more promise than ability during the disappointing season last spring. In what Coach Footrick termed a rebuilding year, the Redmen saw five straight defeats after the opening win over Tufts, and finished the season with a 1-5 record.

One reason for the dismal season was that there were only five seniors on the squad. The nineteen underclassmen contributed heavily to the little success that the team had.

Jim Medeiros, a junior at the time, set the Yan-Con broad jump record with a leap of 21'10". Bob Gaffney, in his first varsity season as a sophomore, came in second in the B.A.A. meet with a fine time of 51.1 seconds in the 440. The Redmen also set the school record in the two mile relay with a time of 8:05.6 at the B.A.A.

In the NEICAA the team placed only nineteenth with four points. The points came from Sadowsky's 5th in the pole vault and Renwick's 4th in the shot put. At the Yankee Conference Championship meet the Redmen placed third for the third time in four years.

The leading point getter was Medeiros with 53½, followed by Renwick with 49, Larvey (42), and Sloan (30). Other high scorers were Sadowsky, Carpenter, and Karagosian.

Lordenmen Finish Second in Yan-Con

A tie for second place in the Yankee-Conference, while not a big disappointment for the Redmen nine, was not exactly what they were looking for. The Redmen were looking to bring home all the marbles. Only two more runs scored in the final Yan-Con game of the season against New Hampshire would have put them into a tie for first along with Connecticut and Vermont.

The overall record could easily have been reversed if Coach Lorden's men had come through with some runs for ace pitcher Carl Boteze. Carl's record was 5-4 with 1.94 earned run average. He lost heartbreakers to Columbia (2-1), Vermont (4-2), and Coast Guard (2-1). In the important second New Hampshire game, Carl allowed only five hits and one run in a losing cause.

The turning point of the season probably came in the second Maine game which the Lordenmen lost 7-5. Dick DeVarney, who was to give the Redmen football team fits in the fall, made two fantastic catches of seemingly sure hits to break up Redmen rallies that would have won the game.

Commendable individual performances were turned in by Al Nordberg, the team's leading hitter at .347; Jim Babyak, the shortstop who hit .344; Dennis Della Piana at .342; and Terry Swanson who hit .247 and didn't make an error all season at his outfield position.

Bill Smith carried most of the pitching load after Boteze, appearing in ten games, compiling a 2-3 record with a 2.48 earned run average.

Roy Lasky has to come off the bag to reach this poor throw to first while a Springfield player picks up one of the 37 hits that ace Carl Boteze allowed in ten appearances last year.

1965 Tennis

Coach Kosakowski's varsity tennis team compiled an excellent 9-1 record during the regular season and was the only winning spring squad for the Redmen in varsity competition. Bolstered by a strong squad of senior lettermen, the racketmen from UMass hammered victory after victory losing only to a powerful West Point team.

Outstanding individual performer for the Redmen was Mike Ross, senior captain. Bob Neal and Steve Johnson provided the extra points in singles play during competition while Billy Martin teamed up with Ross to form one of the best doubles combinations in New England.

The Redmen commenced the regular season with a stunning 5 to 4 victory over versatile MIT; the first victory ever by UMass over the Boston team. Jerry Johnson, sophomore sensation from Worcester, provided the clutch play in this match, winning the last team point of the day over his MIT opponent after having been down 4 to 1 initially.

Other than a close 5 to 4 win over Yankee Conference rival Connecticut, and the MIT score, the UMass tennis team scored lopsided victories over its other rivals.

For the third year in a row the tennis squad finished second in the Yankee Conference competition behind Vermont. In the New England's, UMass finished eighth out of more than thirty participating teams.

On the Water Again

April 9—Amherst College, Villanova, University of Rhode Island at Amherst

April 16—Clark University and Wesleyan at Wesleyan.

April 23—Amherst College and Boston University at Amherst.

April 30—Harvard, MIT, and Princeton at MIT.

May 7—Rusty Callow Regatta at Worcester.

May 14—Dad Vail Regatta at Philadelphia.

The University of Massachusetts is on the water again. Not since 1871, when the "Aggies" defeated Harvard and Brown Universities, has UMass offered a rowing program.

With the donation of an old shell by Yale last spring, the oarsmen began practice on the Connecticut River. A used tobacco barn in Deerfield was used as the boat house. Winter practice was carried on by the dedicated and hard working team members in Memorial Hall, and the donation of five rowing machines by Amherst College helped the squad in their vigorous training.

A great deal of time and effort was put into painting old oars, refinishing the shell, and soliciting for support of the newly organized team. With a formidable spring schedule this year, UMass sports fans will be in for a new and exciting treat in the up-and-coming crew team. Such outstanding crew squads as Harvard, MIT, Princeton, and the Dad Vail Regatta Club of Philadelphia will round out the opening season of the UMass crew team.

UMass Coeds Go Athletic

... steady Marriane!

With the growing importance of women's physical education, there has been an expanding interest in the field of women's sports at the University. Each year, more and more students are participating in team as well as intramural programs.

With the help of the Women's Athletic Association, a variety of activities have been organized for University women to take advantage of. There are many year-round sports as well as many seasonal sports for team competition.

For those interested in fall activities, team sports include tennis and field hockey.

The tennis team, coached by Miss Nancy Rupp, had a very successful season. All the games were won except for Springfield which ended in a tie.

The team was fortunate enough to have several girls competing in the New England Collegiate Tennis Conference at Longwood. Although no UMass players competed in the final round, Lynn Hughes should be commended for reaching the semi-finals.

The women's field hockey team, coached by Miss Upton, had an outstanding season. The girls showed a great deal of co-operation, skill, and enthusiasm, making their team one of the best UMass has produced. The team finished its season by sending three girls to the North East Tournament at Smith College.

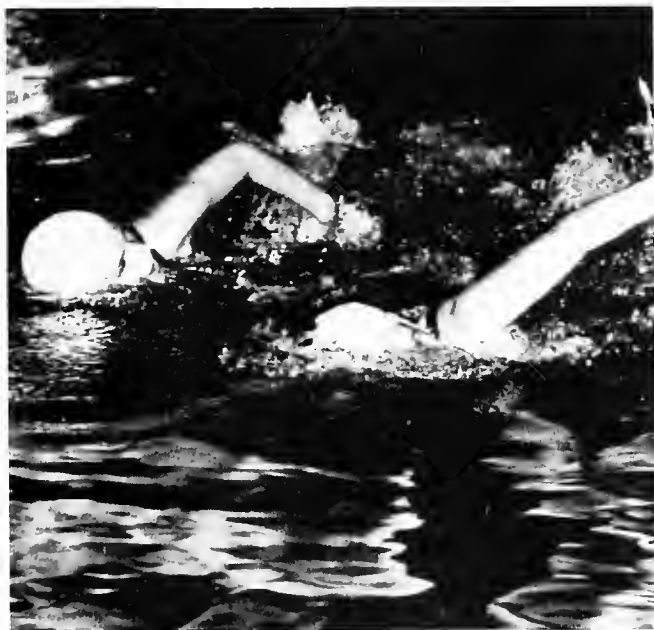

During the colder months, the main attractions for women are gymnastics, basketball, swimming and skiing.

... a perfect ending.

... sticking to hockey.

... up for air.

... Babe at bat!

... a perfect jump.

... limbering up for a Saturday night date.

The gymnastics team had a full season, competing against both college and high school all-stars. The girls ended the season by participation in the Northeastern Invitational Meet at Wheaton College.

For those interested in sports involving a great deal of team work, the women's basketball team, coached by Miss Sally Olgilvie, is offered. Throughout the season, the girls showed a great deal of spirit whether they were winning or losing.

... Coach Kjeldsen wonders.

... speed is the essence!

... #30 prefers to keep her distance.

The swimming team, coached by Miss Beverly Reid, is one of the newer sports being offered in the program. Despite the team's lack of members, those on the team deserve credit for their hard work.

And her rapidly developing sport is the women's ski team. Regardless of the weather the girls practiced every Thursday night at Mt. Tom during the playing season. They had several meets this season in which Kim Garrison proved to be a valuable member of the team.

These are only a few of the many and varied physical education opportunities offered to the University women.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

I.F.C. REPRESENTATIVES

The growing pains at the University along with internal problems have led to the establishment of the I.F.C. Management Workshop. The council, made up of representatives from each house, met last fall to discuss problems of the Greek system and to exchange ideas for strengthening each house. The council picked up a few helpful hints from guest speaker, George Spazack, from Lambda Chi Alpha national, and the Workshop was considered a profitable venture. The SWAP conference was well attended by both I.F.C. and Greeks in general and more constructive ideas were gathered from the many thoughts which came to the surface. The officers then attended the National Interfraternity Council in Washington, D.C. which proved very enlightening.

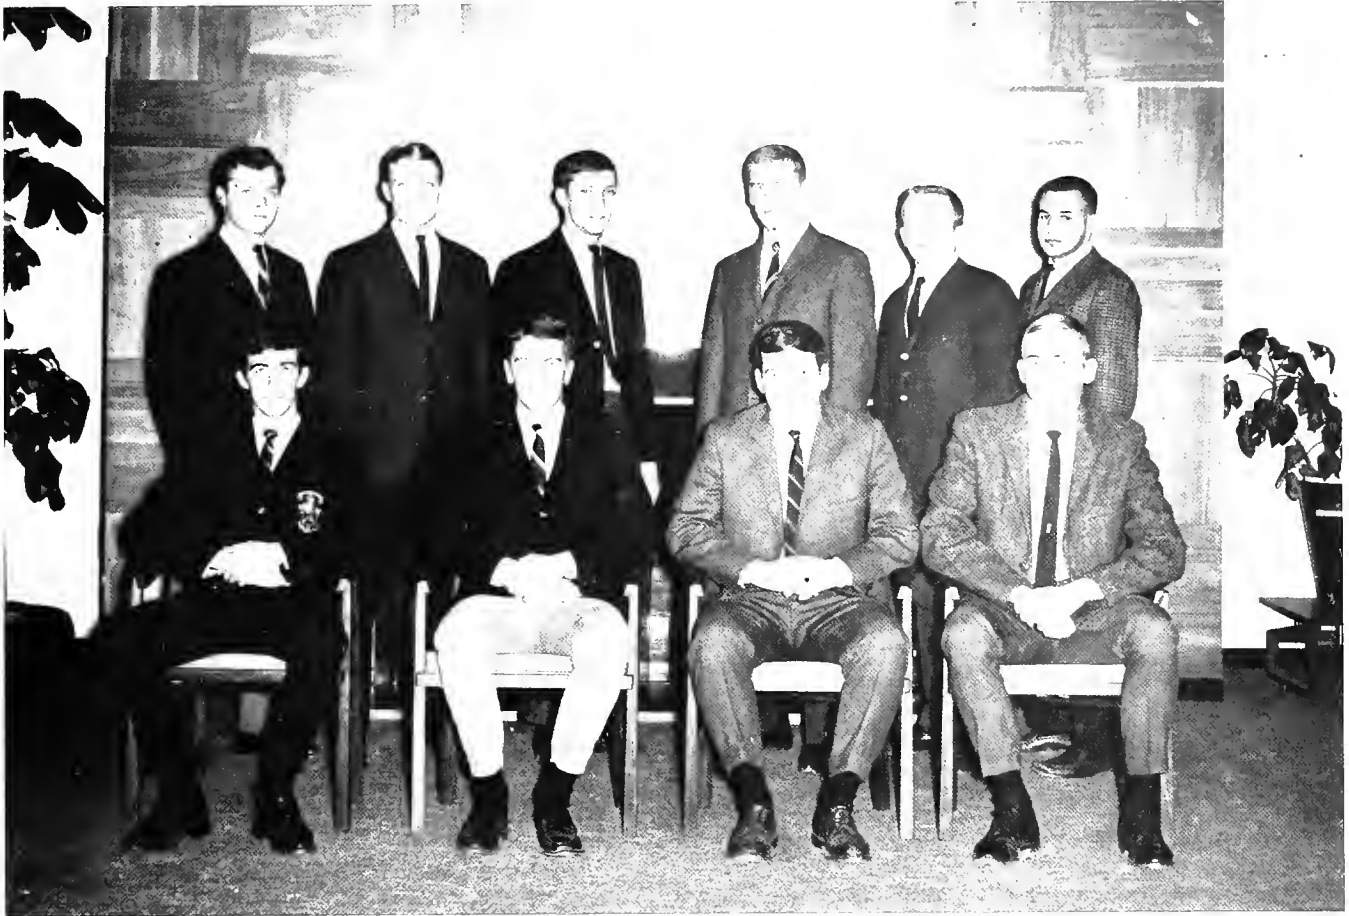

This past year I.F.C. founded Arcon, a campus guide service, which has become one of the most prominent service groups on campus and also the busiest.

Among the many activities of I.F.C. was the U.N. Carnival, held last fall, the proceeds of which went to the United Nations. On Veteran's Day, the council held a memorial service in honor of former UMass students who gave their lives for their country.

Plans for Greek Weekend include floats to enhance the splendor of the pageantry and also skiff races across the campus pond.

IFC is proud of its accomplishments this past year, and hopes that its achievements will continue to strengthen and unify the Greek system.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

Over the years, Alpha Epsilon Pi has remained a participant in campus activities. This year is no exception. Among our brotherhood, we have many active members in various organizations. Among these are Maroon Keys, Class Executive Councils, the Vice-President of the Senior Class and the Business Manager of the Index. Consistent representation in the annual campus blood drive is also an achievement for AEPi, as well as maintaining one of the highest cumulative averages on campus. Our Christmas parties for the benefit of underprivileged children of Amherst have helped to strengthen the relationship between the town and the college community. This year, Alpha Epsilon Pi has initiated the proposal for a new Fraternity Park in Hadley. The brothers hope that this venture will coincide with the future expansion process of the University, in general, as well as the Greek system.

ALPHA TAU GAMMA

Alpha Tau Gamma was founded at the University of Massachusetts in 1919 by and exclusively for Stockbridge students. As in the past it remains the only fraternity on campus selecting solely from the ranks of the Stockbridge School of Agriculture.

The flag flown in front of the house located at 375 North Pleasant Street represents a group of men bonded together striving for the betterment of themselves as well as their fellow man through participation in interfraternal fund raising activities. Social life is one of the high points of fraternity life and Alpha Tau Gamma has more than its share of fun. Participating in Homecoming, Winter Carnival, Greek Weekend, Pledge Formal as well as the private weekend parties. Other than the gaieties of the big weekends, ATG takes part in more serious recreation such as interfraternal sports.

Last, but far from least, is brotherhood. The unison, the bonded friendship shared among the brothers of Alpha Tau Gamma is everlasting.

ATG perseveres in spite of the lack of snow.

BETA KAPPA PHI

On the outside you see an old house, a new house, and a third house hidden by the two—on the inside you see much more. You see a group of men living together and working together . . . the scholar, the athlete, the social man and the student leader share the friendship of a fraternal bond, a bond not distinguished by race, religion or creed. You see a group of individuals putting long hours into house improvement, pledges acting as targets in an eggthrow in order to raise a few dollars for the United Nations Fund, men holding a Christmas party for a few of the children from the Belchertown State Hospital . . . You see the rewards of time and patience when your brothers win the trophies for a first place in the Homecoming Parade, the annual fraternity sing, or overall IFC competition. You see friendships cemented by parties, marathon card games, room jams and late snacks . . . the feeling is hard to explain unless you've experienced it yourself. Beta Kappa Phi—its houses are all different, one old, one new, one hidden . . . the men are different, yet the bond they share is common, strong and sincere.

PHI KAPPA NU

Phi Kappa Nu holds an open smoker in the Colonial Lounge.

They said it couldn't be done—but we did it! Phi Kappa Nu started with twelve members and we were recognized as an JFC colony on April 27, 1965. Though small in number, we have not been hindered in participating in the major Greek events on campus. By the end of first semester we were standing on our feet. Fraternity means brotherhood, high ideals, a good sense of humor, and concern for the guy next door. We possessed these basic attributes and even more; we had optimism for the future.

With our motto, "Coming together is the beginning; staying together means progress; working together will bring success," we are guided along the path towards self-realization as a house.

Determination and hard work will be necessary if we are to achieve our high ideals. We have the drive to make it.

PHI SIGMA DELTA

1965 will be a year that everyone will remember. It was a year that began with great enthusiasm, which has remained with us all year. It was the year of the biggest pledge class that Phi Sig has ever seen.

Those wild, happy hours when 300 people were crammed in the house . . . Christmas spirit abounds . . . A party for the underprivileged children . . . and a party for the brothers . . . vacation!!! Finals!! How did you do . . . Another first place in scholarship maybe . . . Then comes the new semester . . . begins with dropped courses and new majors . . . Finally spring and the warm weather . . . Ah, those trips to the pond to honor the pinned and engaged brothers.

A memorable year for all in which Phi Sig has gone far. Now the summer is here and we all await the mid-summer party and September!

PHI SIGMA KAPPA

Phi Sigma Kappa, founded in 1873 at the University of Massachusetts, still remains as the only Alpha chapter on campus. Steeped in the tradition of its founders, the chapter excels in the cardinal principles on which it was founded.

The chapter is a part of one of the nation's largest national fraternities with 103 chapters across the country.

Phi Sigma Kappa pledges have the cherished opportunity to view college life as well as fraternity life from the best possible perspective, and this life gives them the needed boost to attain the academic achievement that they desire.

The fraternity chapter will boast of its achievements during the year, but its real advancement lies in the opportunity it gives to the entering freshman to acquaint himself with the ever present social aspects of real life and the opportunity to see for himself who and what he is.

QTV

October 13, 1965—The brothers finally moved into the new "Q" house—just in time for a great Homecoming. It was a difficult adjustment for the visiting alumni who had lived in the old house. The old place had seen many good times and had a certain atmosphere about it and all the brothers are working hard to give our new home that old house charm and appeal.

With the new house came a new spirit. Pledging and social functions have been rigorous and enjoyable. The QTVs have been participating fully in campus activities despite the confusion of moving into a new house in the middle of the semester. With our house systems once again functioning as an integral part of the Greek community, everything points to an even bigger and better year ahead for QTV.

Q.T.V.'s begin rush in their new house.

SIGMA ALPHA MU

The Beta Epsilon chapter of Sigma Alpha Mu is one of the most recent additions to the Greek System of the University of Massachusetts.

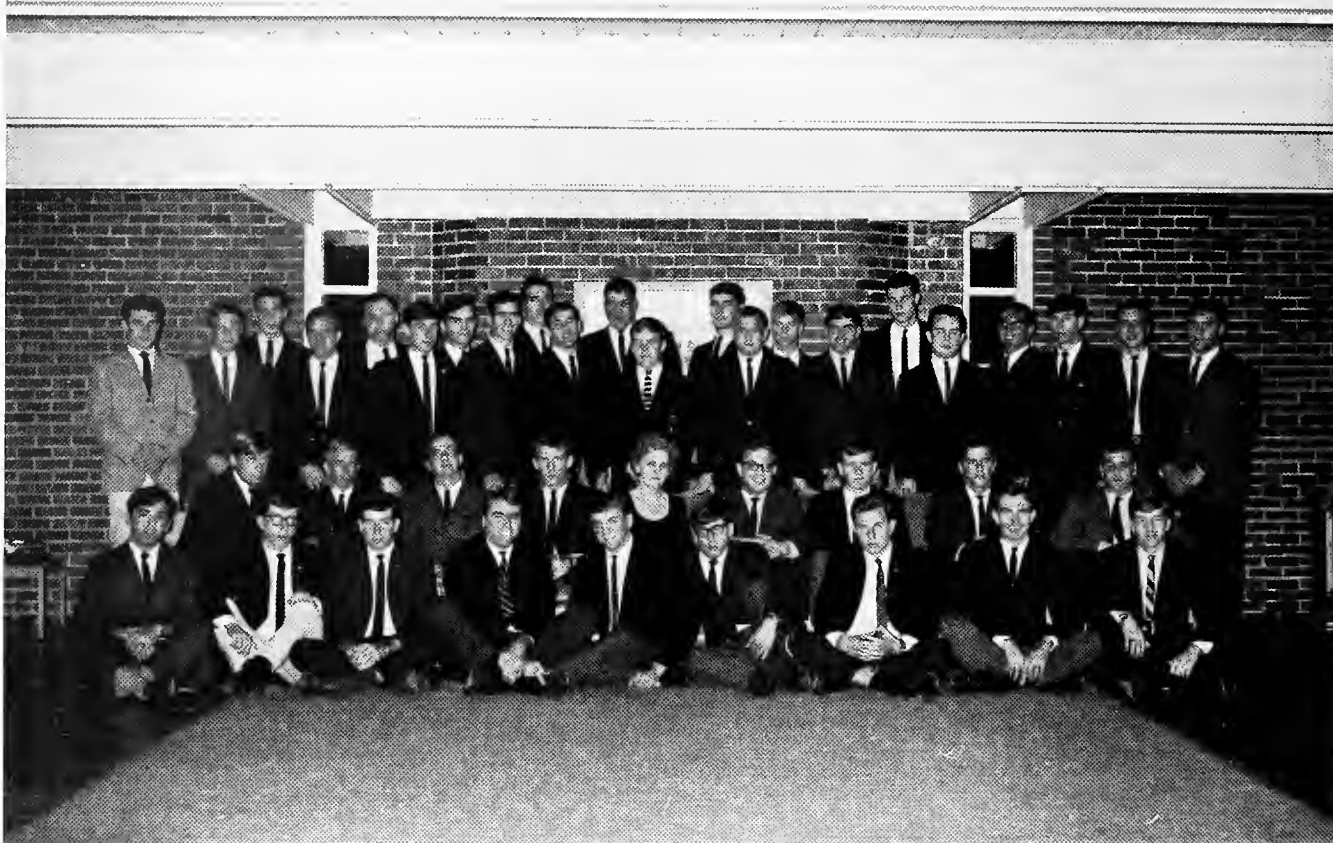

Since its founding by seven men on January 13, 1964, "Sammy" has had phenomenal growth, such that it now boasts of a membership of forty-five. Not content with quantity alone, however, its brothers are active participants in University and inter-fraternity activities, and, in fact, placed fourth in last spring's Greek Week Parade—their first time participating!

This is not, however, SAM's greatest source of pride. What does give its brothers pride is the knowledge that the same spirit of brotherhood and camaraderie with which the founders were infused nearly two and one-half years ago is even more apparent today.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

This year marks the sixty-third anniversary of Sigma Phi Epsilon as a national fraternity, and its fifty-third anniversary at the University of Massachusetts. In the past fifty-three years Sig Ep has contributed outstanding leaders to the campus as well as to the nation.

Five years ago, with the help of loyal alumni, the fraternity built a new addition to the original wooden structure. This past year, construction was completed on the new living quarters replacing the old house.

In athletics, Sig Ep has remained one of the leaders in IFC competition, winning the IFC trophy several times in the last decade. The brothers of Sig Ep enjoy a well-balanced social program, which, however, does not detract from their scholastic aims.

For fifty-three years the bonds of brotherhood have been maintained in Sigma Phi Epsilon, and the same spirit will prevail behind the "Red Door" in the many years to come.

TAU KAPPA EPSILON

This picture needs no caption . . . it's pretty obvious.

Tau Kappa Epsilon, member chapter of the largest social fraternity in the world, this year celebrated its tenth year of achievement at the University of Massachusetts. Last year, having been cited the "Top Teke Chapter" on an intermediate campus, the "Tekes" were further honored by the presentation of the Interfraternity Council First Place Trophy for overall fraternity competition.

Of greatest importance to the Tekes was the reorganization of the TKE Board of Control, and this group's subsequent formulation of a workable plan for the acquisition of a new house. The Board of Control, together with Mr. Robert Gailey, TKE advisor and corporate organizer for the proposed University fraternity complex, worked out the master plans which have assured the chapter a new home within eighteen months. Their efforts and the fraternity's uncompromising dedication to excellence in all areas of Greek endeavor, have secured for TKE the position of prominence which they enjoy.

THETA CHI

Theta Chi fraternity, founded nationally at Norwich University in 1856, started on this campus in 1911, and moved into its present house at 496 No. Pleasant St. in 1935. In 1955 a new addition was added doubling the living space.

Since its inception at University of Mass. Theta Chi has taken an active part in campus leadership. In the past year the house has been well represented in all campus activities such as Maroon Keys, Arcons, Adelpia, Revelers, S.W.A.P., Men's Judiciary and D.V.P.

Theta Chis are also active in campus athletics. In the Intramural League it is considered one of the strongest contenders and is represented in varsity sports.

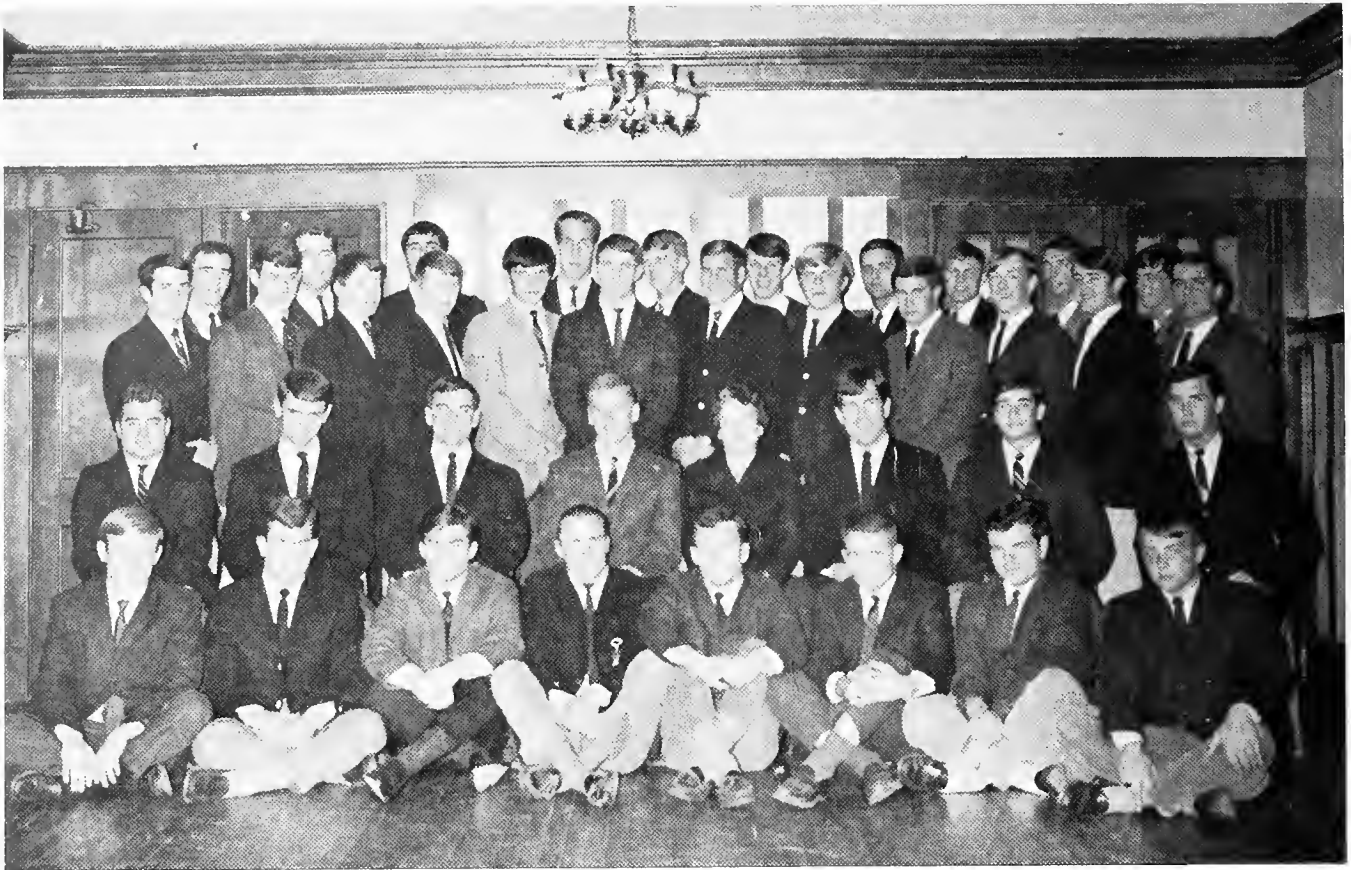

Theta Chi, as in the past, will continue to strive to fulfill its motto, "Alma Mater First, and Theta Chi for Alma Mater."

ZETA NU

Monday—Everyone ambles to classes with “renewed vigor” . . . “Ya gotta love 8 o’clock classes.”

Tuesday—Tuesday night is the best time for diligent research at the library in serene surroundings . . . “It’s 9 o’clock . . . to the Hatch.”

Wednesday—It’s the middle of the week and brothers relieve academic tension by regular attendance at seminars in Social Hatching to break up the routine of the day . . . “weren’t you sitting there 3 hours ago?”

Thursday—The worst part of the week is over . . . time to plan for the weekend . . . “Who’s got a mug-book?”

Friday—Many spend a few “happy hours” anticipating an interesting weekend. After a grueling afternoon the intimate atmosphere of a Friday night is welcomed . . . “I’ll see you and raise you five.”

Saturday—As the band tunes up, the brothers, some with dates, socialize in the congenial confines of the Ad Lib Room . . . “It’s 5 of one, who’s going up the hill?”

Sunday—Breakfast is a roast beef dinner. The rest of the day is spent relaxing and pursuing intellectual endeavors—“36 . . . 22 . . . 36 . . . hike.”

Zeta Nu celebrates its fifth anniversary with a Founders’ Day banquet.

Pan Hellenic Council is the representative body of all sororities on campus concerned with promoting and maintaining sorority growth and unity. The main problem with which Pan Hellenic Council has been concerned during the past year is that of the role of the sorority in the rapidly growing University. Problems of individual houses are discussed with a Pan Hellenic attitude, that is to say, an attitude which is interested in the welfare of the Greek System in general. In order to accommodate for University expansion, Pan Hellenic Council is in the process of revising rush and quota rules.

The Presidents' Council consists of the presidents from each sorority on campus who meet informally to discuss the problems concerning the president of a sorority. Such interaction promotes the exchange of ideas which furthers intersorority understanding and unity.

Both the Pan Hellenic Council and the Presidents' Council are aimed at the betterment of the Greek System as a whole. The responsibilities of both councils coincide and the goals of each are concerned with the belief that Greek System has and will continue to have an important place on this campus.

Psi chapter of the University of Massachusetts was established in 1917 and has one of the largest sisterhoods on campus. We are proud to have done so well in various competitive activities this year, such as the Homecoming Float Parade and the Pan Hellenic Declamation; but we are most pleased with the news that we hold the highest scholastic average of all sororities, fraternities, and dormitories on campus.

We all agree that life at 409 is fine, but sincerely hope that all our endeavors will soon make possible a new house. Wish us luck!

ACADEMIC LIFE

Editor Jaqueline R. Beauvais

Lederle Asserts Quality Increase

"We are on the verge of moving to the front line among state universities," asserts President John W. Lederle, whose main academic concern is maintaining quality while dealing with quantity in UMass' age of expansion.

To provide first-class educational opportunity increased taxes are necessary, Lederle insists, rejecting the alternative of increased tuition rates.

"Low tuition has opened the door of educational opportunity," he says. "The low or free tuition principle is the best scholarship system in the world."

With a view to the future, Lederle stresses the need for graduates to continue their cultural education, revealing plans for a new campus building to house conferences, short courses, and the headquarters for state-wide programs in adult education.

Hunsberger Lauds Academic Rejuvenation

A liberal arts education "provides its members with range and depth of experience, insists upon their thinking critically, fosters their creative abilities, and increases their power to convey ideas," according to I. Moyer Hunsberger, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Each year courses are dropped and others added in an attempt to improve the College of Arts and Sciences, he mentions, pointing with enthusiasm to the new "Modern European Civilization" course initiated this year.

The significance of this "far-reaching" innovation, Hunsberger believes, lies in the fact that it is an old course rejuvenated and has become "a history of ideas rather than dates."

Dean Hunsberger came to UMass in 1960 as head of the Chemistry department after teaching at Antioch College and Fordham University. He became Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences in 1961.

Shute Guides Southwest Program

As master of the new Southwest residential college, Dr. Clarence Shute of the Philosophy Department is able to utilize his philosophy of education through administration as well as teaching.

Concerned with the development of a unique and independent program, rather than a carbon copy of the Orchard Hill project, Dr. Shute encouraged in his planning meetings with students and faculty fellows a willingness to break with conventional procedures and a spirit of initiation and innovation.

Although drawing in part on the lessons of the Orchard experience and its emphasis on a program of broad cultural values, Dr. Shute envisioned the use of the new centrally-located Dining Commons as a study area and as a location for "floating discussions" as uniquely Southwest projects.

If Dr. Shute had his way, students would not be forced by incoming classes or the striking of a clock to discontinue stimulating discussions on a side-topic of a course. According to his projected goals, students interested in exploring a subject in depth through conversation with their peers and professors will be able to retire after class to a designated discussion room with no break in continuity or limitation of time.

Dittfach
Honored
Distinguished Teacher of 1965 - 1966

"His concern in students as people and his commitment to teaching" earned the title of University of Massachusetts Distinguished Teacher of the Year for John H. Dittfach, professor of mechanical engineering.

Dr. Dittfach was selected for this honor by a faculty committee representing the various schools and colleges of the university. His selection as the fourth recipient of the special teaching award given to one faculty member each year marks him as a man of "manifest excellence in the art of teaching and outstanding devotion to the cause of education."

Since his arrival at the University in 1948, Dittfach has played an important role in organizing the UMass chapter of Tau Beta Pi, an engineering honor society which he now serves as advisor.

He was also selected as the administrator of a 1963 National Science Foundation grant to the University for the purchase of advanced equipment for compressible fluid flow instruction.

Active in several phases of his field, Dr. Dittfach holds membership in the Society of Automotive Engineers, the Instrument Society of America, the American Society for Engineering, and the honoraries Tau Beta Pi and Pi Tau Sigma.

Burke Plays Several Roles

A varied man is Mr. Terrence Burke of the Geography Department, who reveals an interest in several phases of University life.

Noted in the classroom situation for his well-organized lectures and charming English wit, Dr. Burke is equally conscientious in his extracurricular meetings with students, devoting many hours to his role as faculty fellow in the Orchard Hill residential college.

An active participant in faculty affairs, he serves also on the Faculty Senate.

Stanfield Stresses Student

A real interest in the student as a person keeps Dr. Robert Stanfield of the Sociology Department a busy man.

Besides serving as a faculty fellow in the Orchard project, Dr. Stanfield is a frequent guest at dormitory functions, when he discusses topics from Juvenile Delinquency to the War on Poverty.

Usually available to his students, Dr. Stanfield does not post office hours, but instead makes it a point to be in his office whenever class schedules do not conflict.

Or, if not in his office, one can frequently find Dr. Stanfield holding "Hatch-hours," as he converses with students almost daily over a cup of coffee.

Allen Achieves Political Expertise

Dr. Luther Allen of the Government Department speaks with the voice of an expert on one of today's most vital international problems.

Since he served as the Smith-Mundt Visiting Professor of Political Science at the University of Saigon in 1960, Dr. Allen has been actively interested and personally involved in the Vietnamese struggle for political stability.

His participation has taken several forms, including articles written for the Massachusetts Review and the Nation, and many public speaking sessions and debates.

More direct involvement began in 1963 when he helped draft and present a four-point program to the State Department urging officials to withdraw their support of the Diem regime.

The impact of Dr. Allen's interest in the Viet Nam situation was evident when he was called back to that country in 1964 at the special request of the Vietnamese government.

Kaplan Offers Literary Views

A devotee in the literary field is Dr. Sidney Kaplan of the English Department.

Specializing in American literature, Dr. Kaplan offers his classes not only traditional interpretations of major works but also discussion or argument on controversial theories of his own, which have appeared as introductions to editions of several authors' works.

The scope of his literary interests is evident in his campus contributions. Once serving as co-editor of the Massachusetts Review, Dr. Kaplan also headed the committee which organized the University of Massachusetts Press, now in its second year of operation.

Steele Merits National Honor

Professor Ronald Steele of the Music Department has won national recognition.

Selected as one of the Outstanding Young Men of America, Steele will be featured in the 1966 edition of the annual biographical compilation sponsored by the Montgomery, Alabama Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Steele's peers, including university presidents and business executives who serve as members of the Board of Advisory Editors, named him for this honor.

Besides serving as a violinist on the faculty of the Music Department, Steele is the founder of the University of Massachusetts Symphony Orchestra, which contributes to the cultural life of the campus.

Under Steele, the Orchestra has developed into a versatile musical group, performing both standard and contemporary works.

Recognizing individual talent, Professor Steele conducts competition in which students with exceptional performing ability vie for positions as soloists.

Faculty, Students, Enjoy Dorm Dinners

Dr. Robert Stanfield talks with students.

A unique innovation of the residential colleges has been the weekly dorm dinner, whose informal atmosphere brings professor and student to an equal level.

In rooms set aside by the Dining Commons, the Orchard and Southwest dorms dine each week with their faculty fellows, combining the intellectual with the social or just getting to know each other.

To encourage and extend this friendly relationship between faculty and students, the residential colleges provide students with complimentary dining tickets for faculty guests at any meal during the week.

Faculty Enriches Campus Culture

Although a professor's influence is felt primarily in the classroom, many members of the UMass faculty contribute to the intellectual and cultural life of their students by offering to the university community the fruits of their own academic endeavors.

Exhibits of original works by members of the art department frequently adorn the main corridors of the Student Union and the lobby of Bartlett Hall, capturing the attention of students and visitors.

In a similar manner, the music department presents its own concert series, which this year featured recitals by pianist Howard Lebow, clarinetist Joseph Contino, and soprano Dorothy Ornest, besides an evening of Chamber Music by a group of faculty musicians.

Members of several departments participated in the Meet-the-Author coffee hours, at which the university's own authors discussed their recently published books with other faculty members and students.

Students Help Structure Academics

Through the Academic Affairs Committee of the Student Senate, members of the UMass student body can play an important role in the formulation of academic policy.

Cooperating with the office of the Provost and the Faculty Senate, the student committee acts as a grievance and suggestion committee, relaying feelings of the student body to the faculty and administration.

It has dealt with such topics as the value of counseling day and the advisor system, the scheduling of classes on holidays and at night, the examination period, and the marking system.

Not content with a purely critical approach, the Committee on Academic Affairs makes its own suggestions on broadening or improving the curriculum.

Agriculture

Nurtures

Scientific, Esthetic

"Agriculture is so far removed from the plow and the hoe," asserts Benjamin Goddard of the Horticulture department of the College of Agriculture, calling such instruments "today's tools of the backyard gardener."

One phase of agriculture, for instance, Plant and Soil Science, has become both an applied science and an art.

Although the agricultural curriculum necessarily stresses the scientific in the study of the environmental, nutritional, and genetic factors governing plant development and growth, attention is also given to the artistic in several ornamentals courses.

Offering an appreciation of the aesthetic value of plants, courses in floral design, house plants, and garden plants answer the secondary needs of agriculture.

Nursing Major Provides Liberal,

"A four-year progression" aptly describes the curriculum pattern of the School of Nursing, whose graduates can boast a liberal education plus professional skills.

During the freshman and sophomore years nursing students take foundational courses in communication skills and biological, physical, and behavioral sciences.

Opportunity is provided to make full use of pertinent learning when, in the sophomore year, a student is placed in charge of a patient's care and must relate applicable principles to the understanding and skills required in professional nursing.

Faculty-guided student practice expands during the junior and senior years when future nurses spend several days a week at an affiliated hospital. Such direct experience in the medical, surgical, maternal, child, psychiatric, and public health areas of the profession both synthesizes and focuses their education.

Future nurse studies principles of anatomy.

Professional Education

Individual experience in the nursing situation is supplemented by clinical conferences at which both students and faculty share in the learning process by discussion of problems or approaches.

The professional staffs of such agencies as the Northampton State Hospital, and the Adult Mental Health Center, the Health department, and several hospitals in Springfield cooperate with the University nursing faculty in supervising clinical practice by students.

Nursing graduates are prepared to give skillful nursing care to people in various hospital and community settings. Because their curriculum stresses understanding of underlying principles and judgment in assessing new factors in nursing situations, they can adapt easily to change and initiate it when necessary.

Courses in the fundamentals of teaching and administration enable them also to interpret and demonstrate nursing care to others and give them some competence in planning and directing nursing care by associated personnel.

Students review anatomical principles in preparation for planning regimen of nursing care for patients requiring eye or brain surgery.

School Of Business Marks Milestones

Reflecting the dynamic changes taking place in education, the School of Business Administration demonstrates progress in both its physical and intellectual growth.

With the dedication of the new building in April of last year, the department marked a milestone in improvement of facilities, while several developments point to equivalent milestones in the academic program.

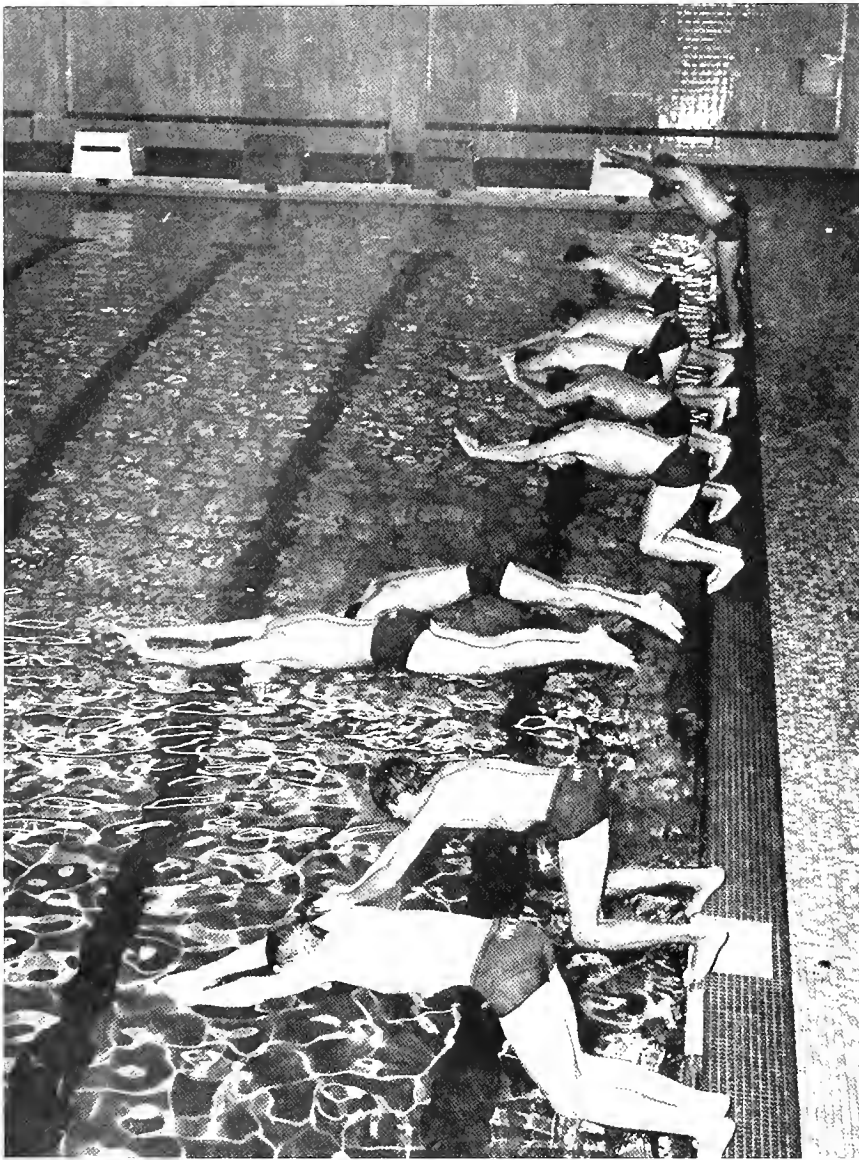

According to Dean Himy B. Kirshen, "Leaders in both business and government must be highly intelligent and highly skilled. Since they require the same excellence in education as those in other field of endeavor, the School of Business Administration is under an equal obligation to provide them with quality education."

The purpose of the business curriculum is to prepare students to take advantage of important economic opportunities and eventually to assume positions of responsibility in business.

Although majors are offered in Accounting, General Business and Finance, Management, and Marketing, all students are required to take a "core" of courses designed to give a broader view of the business world as a whole.

To supplement the curriculum with continuing research activity, the School has developed its own version of the Distinguished Visitors Program. Known as the School of Business Administration Colloquium, the program brings to the campus each year a series of outstanding speakers on modern business and industrial problems.

Recognizing the need for the exchange of knowledge and ideas, the School has initiated also a six-week Junior Executive Training Program for groups of young foreign businessmen. Under the sponsorship of the Experiment in International Living, the JET Program provides representatives of foreign industry with a better understanding of American business principles and practices through course work, seminars, visits to industries, and competitive "Business Games."

Program Promotes Physical Fitness

Running builds stamina.

A scholar and athlete in one well-rounded individual was the ideal of the Greek philosophers, and the University is attempting to convert this ideal into practice.

Supporting the concept of physical fitness, the required physical education program offers students the opportunity to develop their physical potential during at least four semesters of active participation in sports and recreation.

Because physical fitness is an idea with universal appeal and importance, special provisions are made for the physically disabled in a remedial or adaptive program designed to develop the individual according to his capacity and with a view to his limitations.

The School of Home Economics provides education for a variety of professional careers through a curriculum which includes both on-campus and field training programs.

Majors in Child Development gain basic practical experience in early childhood education through a fully-programmed laboratory nursery school in Skinner Hall, then may elect a semester of specialized study off-campus.

Qualified students travel to the Merrill-Palmer Institute in Detroit for concentrated study of human development and family life, or specialize in the education of children from three to six at the Eliot-Pearson School in Boston.

This thorough training qualifies graduates to work in such settings as laboratory schools, public and private nursery schools, clinics for exceptional children, hospital recreation programs, and other community agencies.

Education Emphasizes Classroom Observation

To acquaint prospective teachers with the practical aspects of the classroom situation before practice-teaching is the function of the Education department's observation program.

Several types of modern educational equipment make this opportunity possible.

From the observation window in specially designed classrooms in the Education Building students can watch as qualified teachers conduct classes of grade-schoolers, then discuss the methods and problems of the teacher with a faculty director.

In addition, closed-circuit television facilities enable the video-taping of classroom scenes which are then televised in a specially-equipped auditorium. A discussion usually follows in which the observed teacher herself answers questions about her handling of the situations encountered.

UMass boasts one of the finest engineering schools in the country and recent events are working to maintain its current high standing.

A program of expansion to provide increased laboratory and office facilities resulted in the opening this year of the new East addition to the main Engineering Building.

As a regular part of the Engineering curriculum, one finds a two-year honors program. This Engineering Science option, open to junior and senior honor students, emphasizes the application of basic sciences to the research and development aspects of engineering.

Extensive courses in mathematics, physics, and other basic sciences prepare the student for research work by developing his skill in precise reasoning, analysis, and synthesis.

At the same time the rather specialized Engineering curriculum offers cultural breadth in its requirement that twenty per cent of a future engineer's education be devoted to the humanities and social sciences.

Labs Take Several Forms

To give students a first-hand knowledge of the subject matter is the purpose of laboratory periods, which appear in several forms in the arts as well as the sciences.

Although a lab period in some sciences is now optional, these special classes offer the advantage of involving the student intimately with his subject and integrating its details into a more meaningful whole.

In introductory science courses laboratory experiments give a more concrete form to abstract theory, while language labs offer hours of oral practice in conversation situations.

The psychology department provides opportunities for observation and experiment in its lab sessions, with the students participating sometimes also as subject.

Speech Majors Learn Through Service

Speech Therapy majors provide a valuable service to the University and the community while fulfilling the requirements of their curriculum.

The basis of the Speech Therapist's training is a knowledge of the mechanics of speaking, provided by courses on Phonetics, the Physiology of Speech, and Speech Pathology.

Clinical classes also form a vital part of the Speech Therapy curriculum.

In such courses as Introductory and Advanced Clinical Practice, and Rehabilitation of the Acoustically Handicapped, Speech Therapy majors gain practical experience from two-hour lab periods, in which they work directly with the handicapped. Each major is assigned to help two clients.

Two well-equipped audiometric testing suites on the first floor of Bartlett serve as the Speech major's clinic.

People come from all over Massachusetts to take advantage of the free therapeutic service offered by the Speech department.

To improve the speech of the campus as a whole, the University allows students with speech defects to fulfill their speech requirement by undergoing several hours of therapy a week, under the direction of graduate students and Speech Therapy instructors.

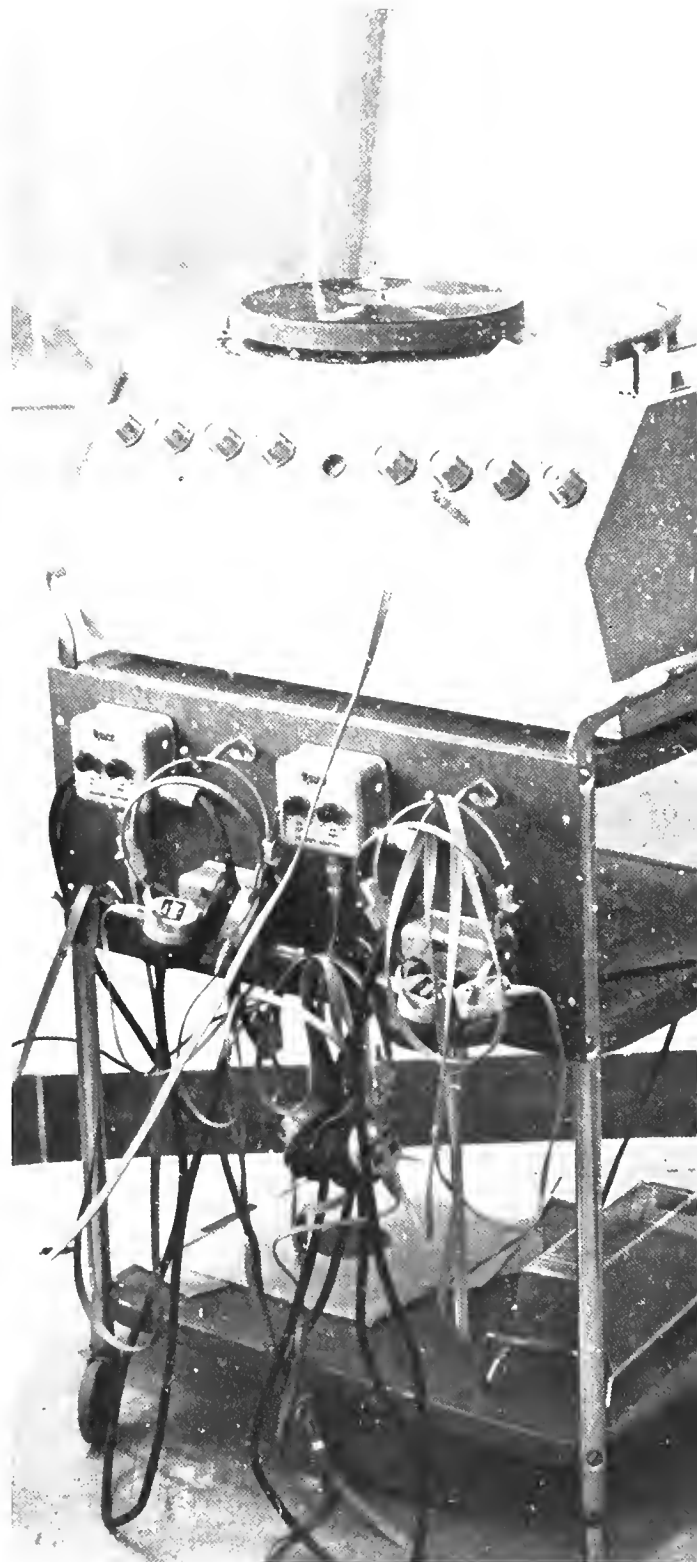

Foreign students benefit also from this program, as the Speech Department aids some of them in their efforts to speak English.

UMass Invades Europe for Summer Study

Bologna program offers use of modern facilities.

UMass will go international this summer, as contingents of students travel to England and Italy for special study.

Programs sponsored by the English and History departments will provide cultural and travel opportunities as well as academic credit.

At St. Hilda's College at Oxford University, English enthusiasts will study under regular members of the Oxford faculty in a program coordinated by Dr. Ernest Hofer, Associate Head of the English Department.

Graduate and undergraduate credit will be offered for courses on English literature, which can be studied amidst the surroundings in which it was written.

In the Bologna program sponsored by the history department, three University professors and 65 students will participate in a seven-week session at the Bologna center of the John Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies.

Field trips to nearby cultural centers will supplement classroom work in courses on Renaissance art and history, romantic poets in Italy, and European political and economic integration.

Faculty members will include Dr. Howard Brogan, Commonwealth head of the English department, Dr. Paul Norton, head of the Art department, and Associate Professor Vincent Ilardi of the History department.

Library Provides

University academic life revolves around the library as well as the classroom, with the stacks serving as both a study and research center.

Goodell Library recognizes this fact in its present plans for expansion designed to keep pace with an increasing enrollment and rising educational standards.

Already nineteen departmental and laboratory libraries are maintained in all major buildings on campus, paralleling the division of the campus into distinct residential areas.

Academic Center

With a present volume of over 300,000 books and 2,000 periodical journals, the University looks forward to a million-volume capacity by 1970.

To implement this goal, the library automatically acquires every non-fiction scholastic work published in the Western countries, while individual professors suggest for acquisition previous publications in their fields.

A new building for graduate and research students will supplement the 1,350 seating capacity and will answer the needs of the rapidly growing graduate school.

Thirty UMass students play a role in important international decision-making every week, as they participate in the popular Great Decisions series.

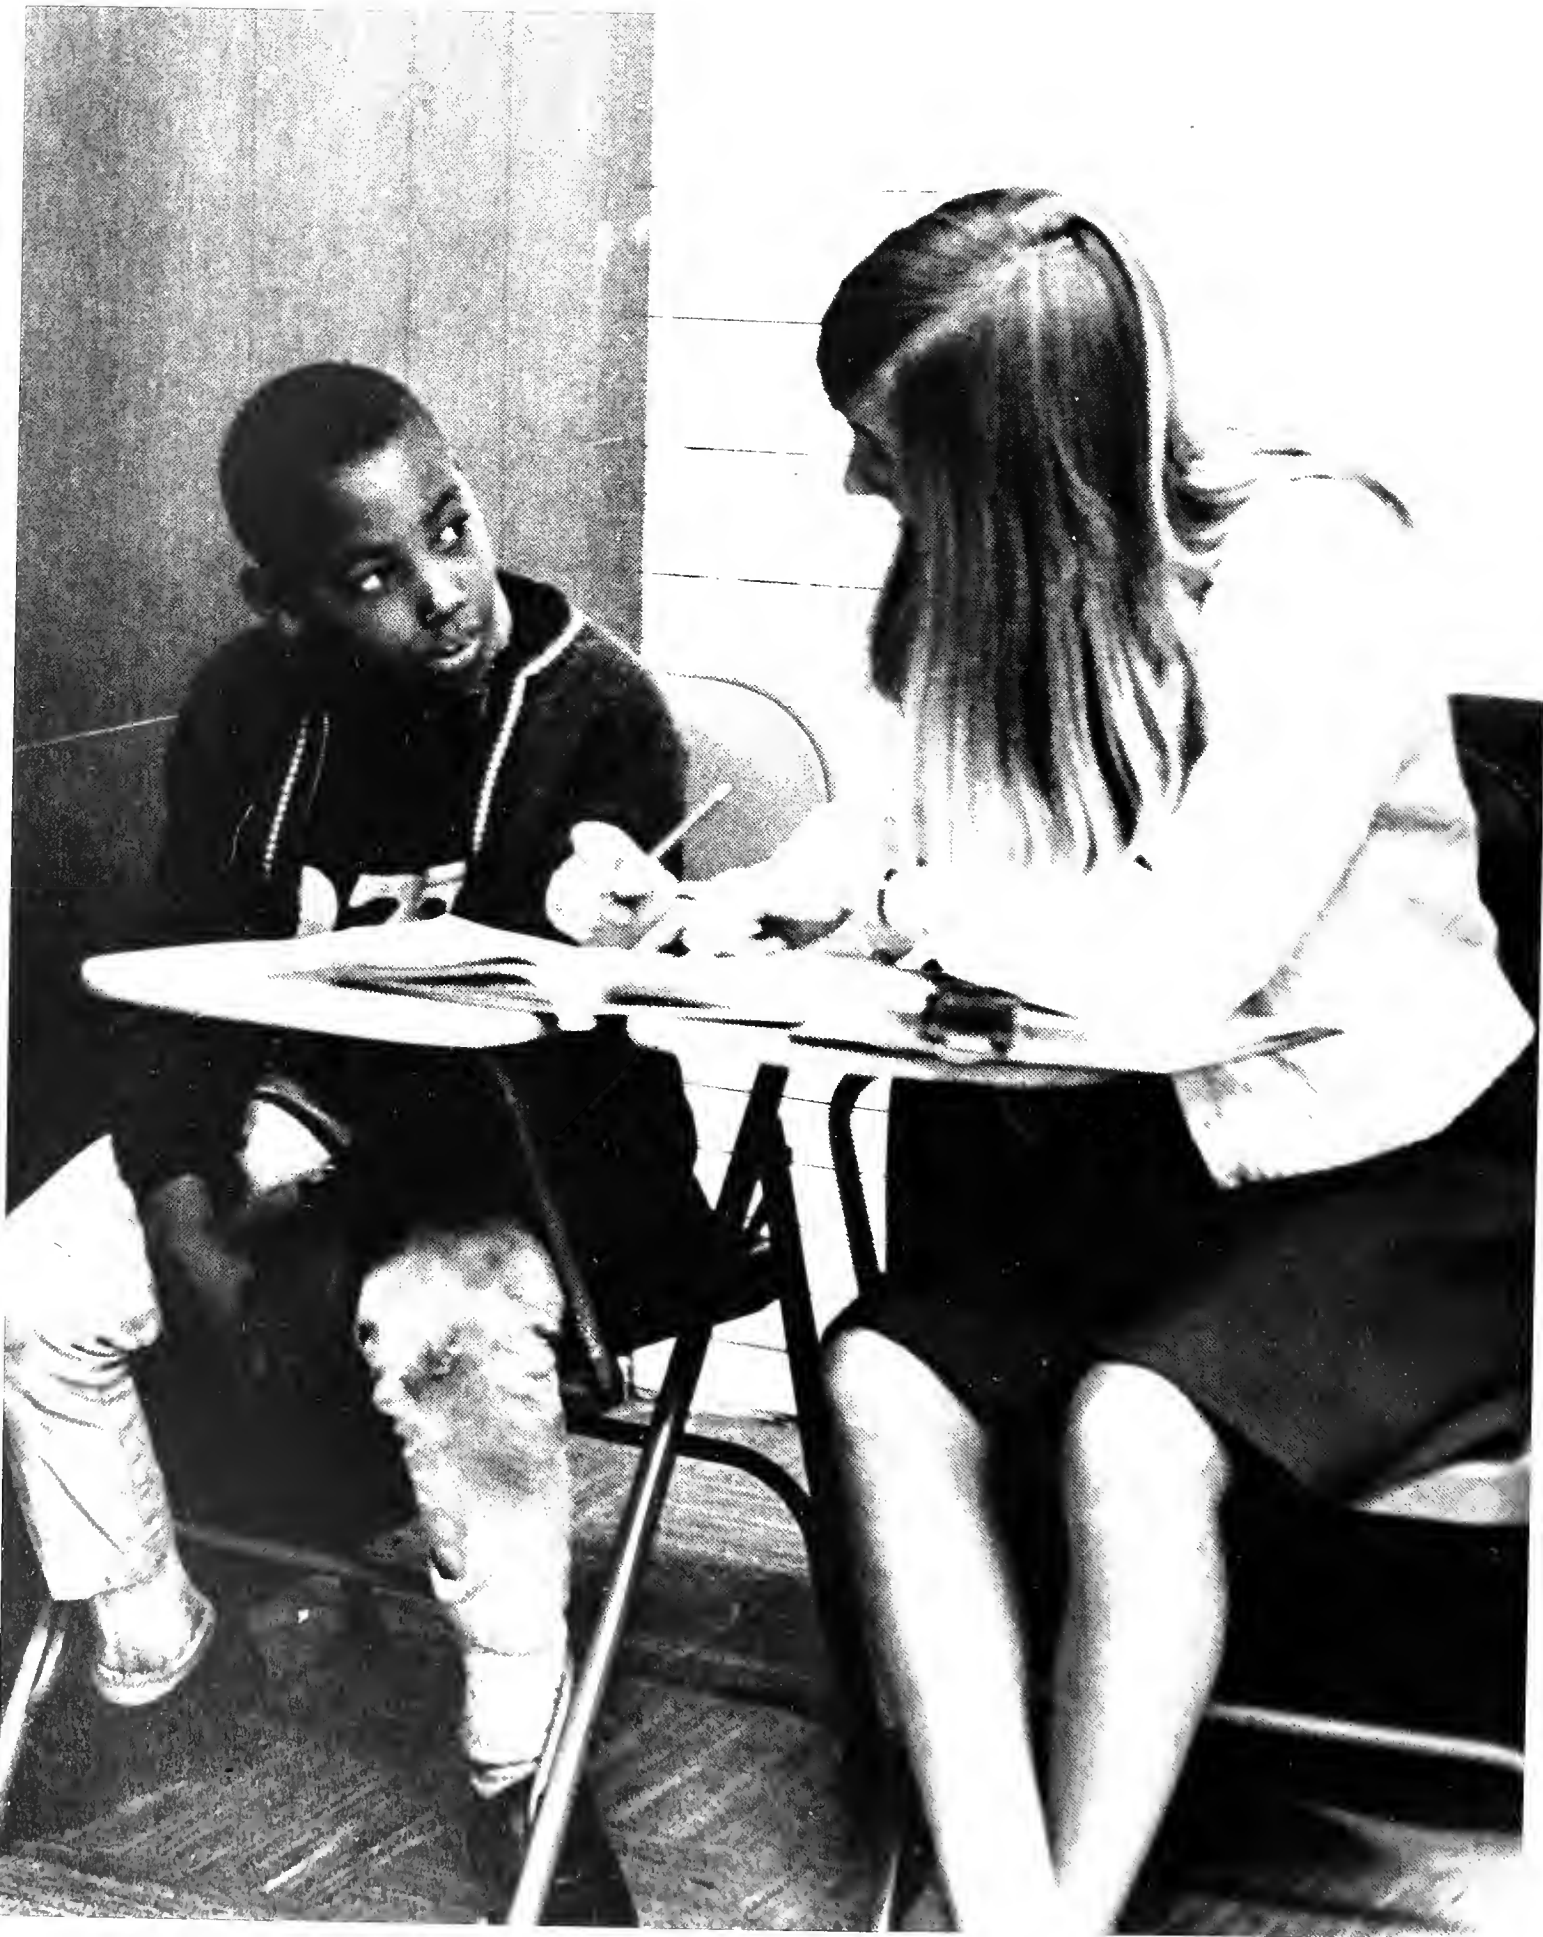

In this nationwide program which reaches many high schools, colleges, adult education classes, and senior citizen groups, participants discuss seven problems of American foreign policy with a view to solution or improvement.

Directed at the University by Dr. Luther Allen of the Government Department, the Great Decisions group meets each week in the main lounge of Webster House, which sponsors the series as part of its residential college program.

Before each meeting, students read the appropriate chapter in the Great Decisions book which provides a general outline of the topic, while a professor, foreign student, or other expert in the particular area, is usually present to fill in details.

Students frequently moderate the discussions which follow.

Open meetings every two weeks extend the benefits of the program to the entire campus.

Students Join Tutoring Project

UMass students joined forces this year with other area schools in a project of educational assistance for culturally deprived children.

Working with the Springfield branch of the Northern Educational Service, volunteers tutored students in grades one through twelve especially in such basic subjects as mathematics and reading skills.

Emphasis in the program is on a one to one relationship in the hope of giving as much attention as possible to the needs of the individual student.

Several preliminary training sessions prepared student instructors for their tutoring task, to which they devoted at least one and a half hours each week.

Colloquia Foster Independent Thought

The exchange and interplay of ideas is the goal of the university's Honors Colloquia.

Open to honor students from all four classes, these weekly discussion groups provide opportunities for the thinking student to test his ideas on peers and professors and to profit from their conversation.

The emphasis in the colloquia is on the individual student and his development of a unique intellect. Through the processes of discussion and argumentation, students are able to strengthen, modify, and redefine tentative ideas or impressions, thus increasing their conviction or broadening their understanding.

In addition, the absence of any marks for the loosely-structured program encourages initiative and originality and makes possible concentration on whatever field the group finds most stimulating or valuable.

Language Corridors

Live And Learn

Combining learning with everyday living is a special feature of the university's several language corridors.

In this completely voluntary program, students interested in increasing their fluency in French, Spanish, or German, live together in a designated section of a dormitory, carrying on all conversation in the "native" tongue.

All language corridors have a faculty advisor plus a resident native-speaker to direct their activities.

The original language corridor, the French corridor for girls, now resides in Eugene Field House, with senior Carol Woodcock, who spent her junior year at the Sorbonne, acting as counselor.

The girls sponsor such special programs as the Treteau de Paris each spring and the monthly French film series, in addition to their regular meetings and lectures by faculty members on French culture.

Honor Societies Demonstrate Academic Growth

Master of Ceremonies reads Phi Beta Kappa charter at chapter installation.

Keeping pace with an expanding campus, UMass honor societies mirror the academic growth and development of the university.

This year marked the first anniversary of the installation of the Nu chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, a coveted academic honor and a testimony to the spirit of the school, the quality of its work, and the achievements of its graduates.

Further academic distinction was achieved by the School of Education with the spring initiation of charter members of the Kappa Lambda chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, the national Education honor society.

Yet the significance of honor societies does not rest solely on past achievement nor terminate with the initiation. True to their ideals of learning, leadership, and service, several of the campus chapters conduct tutoring programs, sponsor scholarships and essay contests, and visit area high schools in an attempt to promote the values they represent.

Alpha Zeta Fosters Agriculture Image

To promote the image of agriculture on campus is a major objective of Alpha Zeta, an honorary fraternity composed of outstanding students of the School of Agriculture.

Besides their recognition of achievement by membership, the group awards a certificate of merit to the outstanding freshman in this field, and sponsors a Freshman "smoker."

Members benefit especially from its placement program which keeps them aware of professional job opportunities.

To maintain high scholarship standards in forestry education, to recognize academic achievement, and to promote fellowship among majors are the objectives of the group.

Members are chosen from the top fourth of their class, while faculty members may also be selected for membership.

Phi Tau Sigma Offers Essay Award

To encourage the application of fundamental scientific principles to Food Science, to honor professional achievement in the field, and to stimulate the free exchange of knowledge are the objectives of Phi Tau Sigma, founded here at the University.

The organization sponsors a scholarship program in which any Food Science major from the four colleges can compete by writing an essay. This year's topic was "Feeding the World's Expanding Population."

Beta Gamma Sigma Rewards Character

As the highest scholarship honor a student in business administration can win, membership in Beta Gamma Sigma is a coveted distinction.

To foster honesty and integrity in business practice, selection of members is based on high moral character as well as scholastic achievement.

Encouraging and rewarding accomplishment in the field of business studies and the spread of business education are the main goals of the society.

Phi Kappa Phi Honors 57 Scholars

One of the highest scholastic honors at the University is an undergraduate's election to Phi Kappa Phi in his junior or senior year.

Founded in 1897, this national all-university scholastic honor society has two ruling purposes. One is the conviction that by recognizing and honoring those who have excelled in scholarship, other students may be inspired to work for a high standing. The other objective is the belief that scholarship is universal, not limited.

Honors Program

Vivian explains questionnaire to subject.

To graduate with departmental honors is an impressive academic achievement.

The Senior Honors program, a valuable preparation for graduate study, provides students with this opportunity.

Directed by Dr. Arthur Elkins of the School of Business Administration, the honors program places students in a three to one faculty-student ratio, as each honors candidate works with three faculty advisors, two in his major department and one from a related field.

Work on the projects begins in the spring of the junior year when the students meet with advisors to pinpoint a topic.

Emphasis in topic selection is on the scholarly value of the proposed study. Participants choose often to investigate relatively unexplored aspects of their fields.

Research and actual drafting of the approximately 75-page honors thesis continues until the middle of the next April, after which the honors candidate undergoes an oral examination conducted by his three advisors.

During recent years, several honors theses have been published, while all are available for the perusal of the academic community in the University library.

For her senior honors project psychology major Vivian Coggeshall chose a topic with a direct bearing on the educational process and academic life.

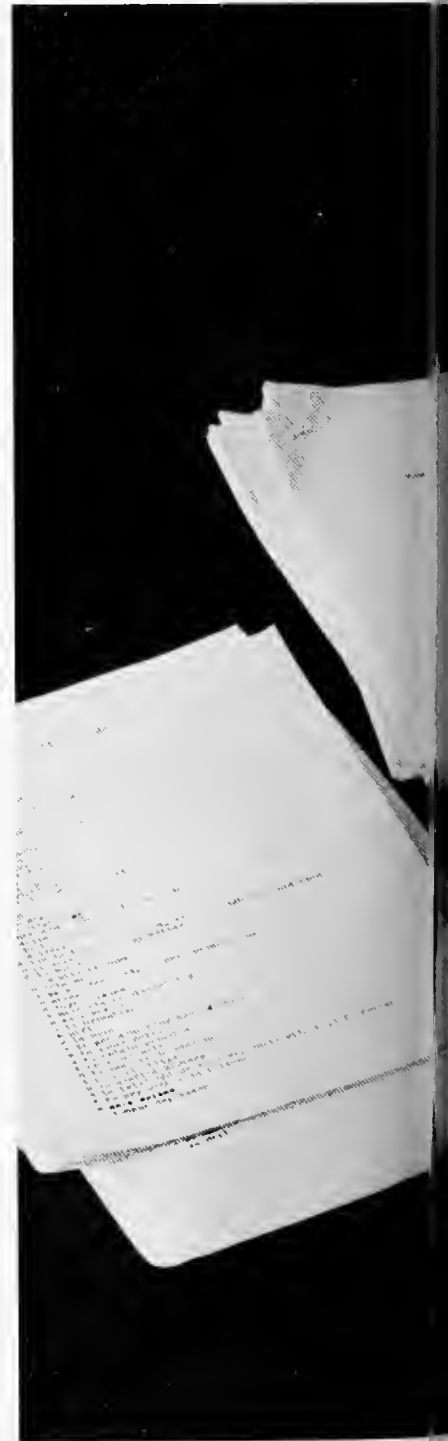

Investigating the affects of group discussion on creativity, Vivian administered a creativity test to approximately 800 students, requiring them to complete statements in their own words.

The questionnaire was given to both traditional and ad hoc groups, as well as to individuals apart from the group situation, in the expectation that group discussion would inhibit creativity.

Scoring was based on the number and uniqueness of the responses, and was followed by a statistical analysis of the results.

As is the case with all other honors candidates, Vivian had to weigh the merits of a wealth of research information, including ambiguous or conflicting statistics or details, and mould them into a consistent and logical study representative of almost an entire year of work.

One value of Vivian's study may be the light it can shed on the relative merits of discussion groups and lecture classes in this era of an expanding university.

Orchard Emphasizes Interdisciplinary Education

Since its beginning as an experiment in residential college living, the Orchard Hill complex has become an educational innovator in its own right.

To explore the possibilities of interdisciplinary learning, the Orchard has initiated a course on Russian Society in which faculty members from several departments participate as lecturers.

Under the direction of Dr. John Fenton of the Government Department, eight professors, including several of the Orchard's original faculty fellows, work to provide "perspectives" on several aspects of Soviet life, focusing on the theme Continuity and Change in the Soviet Union.

The student's challenge in such a course lies in moulding details from the several disciplines into an integrated, coherent view.

Mr. Terrence Burke introduced the class to Russian geography, and Dr. J. Gillooly provided an account of the state's history.

Lectures followed by Dr. L. Ehrlich of the Philosophy Department, Dr. V. Holesovsky of Economics, Dr. L. Tikos of Russian, Dr. F. Vali of Government, Dr. E. Jarvesco of Food Economics, and Dr. R. Wellman of Education.

Although the course was organized primarily for the benefit of Orchard Hill residents, a limited number of spaces are reserved for students from the rest of the campus.

As further advantages of residential college living, class meetings are conducted in the informal atmosphere of the Webster House main lounge, while each of the four Orchard dorms contains copies of the course's texts in their second floor lounge-libraries.

Students enjoy the pleasant atmosphere of Webster's lounge.

Trustees Choose Worcester

as Medical School Site

Soutter Guides Medical School

In a closed-door decision which proved the focus of much controversy, the Trustees of the University of Massachusetts chose Worcester as the site of the new Medical School.

Centering around the cost of constructing the Medical School in Worcester, the discussion has included frequent reference to the Booz, Allen, and Hamilton report that named Amherst as a superior and less expensive site.

Not limited to area competition, the controversy has drawn the interest of several groups and has sparked constructive suggestions of political reform.

The opinion of heart surgeon Dr. Paul Dudley White that "A strong medical school should and can be developed sooner and with less confusion and less cost at Amherst," led to a petition requiring a state court decision.

The secret nature of the Trustees decision-making has led to a bill supported by Representative David M. Bartley of Holyoke, requiring that votes of any state agency be a public record.

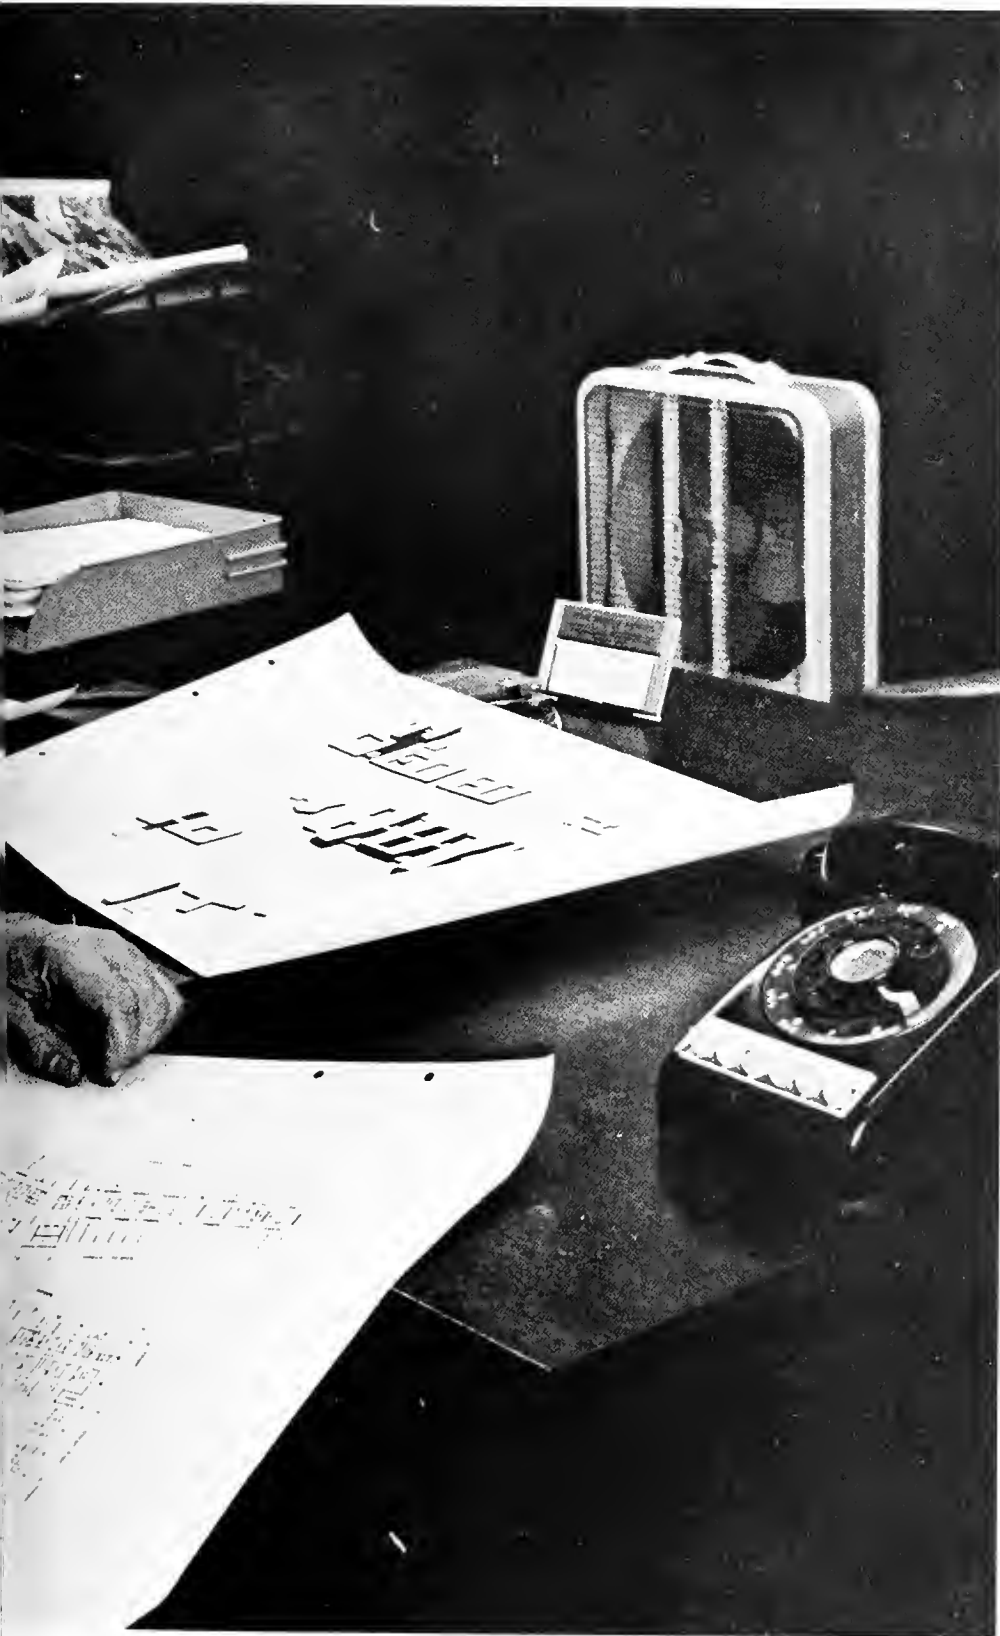

Another bill sponsored by Rep. George L. Sacco, Jr. of Medford would require a two-thirds vote of any board, council or commission before it could go into closed door session.

According to Rep. Sacco, this bill would protect rights of minorities by keeping before the public discussions it has a right to know about.

Dean Soutter works on Medical School plans.

Plans Through Controversy

As Dean of the Medical School, Lamar Soutter has a mammoth job.

Calling for a medical school of the highest quality, Dean Soutter emphasizes the need of high objectives, a strong faculty, excellent facilities, adequate financing and a performance consistent with objectives.

His timetable for the Medical School sets 1970 as the approximate opening date.

Two years will be required for architectural planning, six months for obtaining necessary construction funds from the Federal Government, two years for actual construction, and one year to equip and recruit faculty for the teaching staff.

Dr. Soutter foresees a faculty to student ratio of three to one. One hundred students per class will receive training in the proposed 400 bed hospital.

Although Dr. Soutter prefers Amherst as a site for the Med School, he speaks of Worcester as "a good site." He is determined to establish a fine Medical School whatever the final location may be.

Four Colleges Pool Resources in Educational

Four-college cooperation will become five-college cooperation in three years as Amherst, Smith, Mount Holyoke, and the University embark on a new educational adventure.

The planned establishment of Hampshire College, a new undergraduate liberal arts college, with the academic support of the four colleges, is in several ways a direct result of the already well-developed program of cooperation.

To extend and enrich their collective educational resources, the four colleges have for several years sponsored a joint astronomy department, new courses in non-Western studies, Ph.D. programs, and a exchange program whereby a student in any of the four institutions may enroll in courses given at the other three.

As a continuation of these policies, Hampshire College will emphasize a flexible program, free from traditional restrictions and ideal for educational experiment.

In an effort to determine whether costs of education can be substantially reduced without impairing quality, the new college will participate in the exchange of courses and teachers and the joint utilization of facilities.

With a planned enrollment of one thousand men and women, Hampshire College will be able to maintain the advantages of a small college while sharing in the merits of the larger ones.

Three hundred acres of land equidistant from the four colleges have been chosen for the campus.

The presidents of the four institutions will serve on Hampshire College's first Board of Trustees.

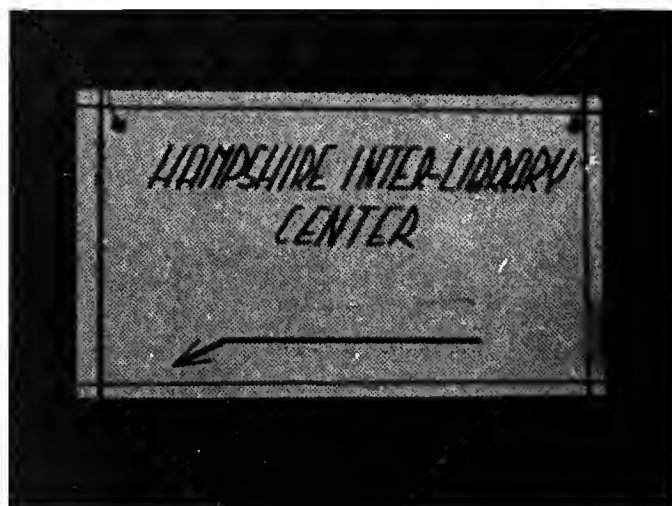

Special 4-college bus transports UMass students to and from classes at Smith, Mount Holyoke, and Amherst.

Rich Resources

Because libraries form such a vital part of higher education, the four colleges have pooled their resources in this area too.

Located in the new section of Goodell library, the Hampshire Inter-Library Center, serves as a depository for research materials and learned periodicals of a kind and in a quantity beyond the reach of any one of the libraries operating independently.

In addition, books which a student cannot obtain at his own school library often become available to him through a special borrowing service. Any junior or senior may request through the University library a book owned by one of the other schools and will receive it the next day if the book is not already in use.

Dates suggest value of works.

WFCR boasts fine equipment.

WFCR Entertains Four College Area

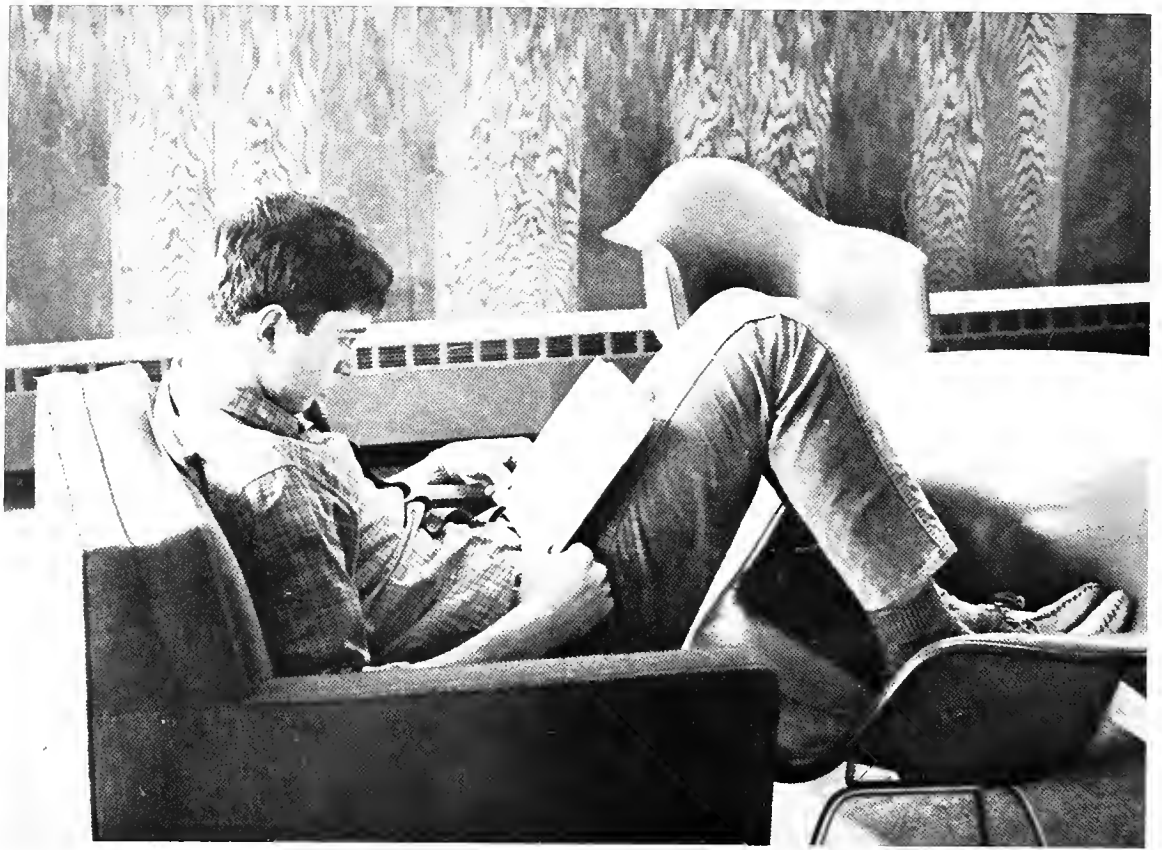

Serving as the WMUA of the four-college area, radio station WFCR is a joint endeavor.

Supported by funds and administered by a Board of Directors from the University, Amherst, Smith, and Mount Holyoke, WFCR is operated by a professional staff, while ten students from all colleges and various major departments are employed in the announcing, recording, production, and technical aspects of programming.

A member of the non-commercial broadcasting system, the four-college station offers programs of news, public affairs, serious music, drama, and other cultural topics each day from noon to midnight.

We have learned that we cannot live alone, in peace; that our own well-being is dependent on the well being of other nations, far away. We have learned that we must live as men, and not as ostriches, nor as dogs in the manger. We have learned to be citizens of the world, members of the human community.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt

At this time, I would like to step out of my editorial role in order to extend my appreciation to all those people in the University who have extended to myself, and to my staff, the assistance and advice that, at times, was so desperately needed.

It is impossible to give adequate credit to all those people who, in their own way, have made the 1966 Index a reality. I would like to extend particular thanks to Ken Gordon, Rick Sadowski, Frank Flavin, Jeff Rees, Jack Dean, and Cliff Banner for their efforts in producing the photography used in the Index.

Thanks, too, are extended to Mike Dasho and Guy Quartarone of Lincoln Studio, for their assistance in the production of the Senior Section.

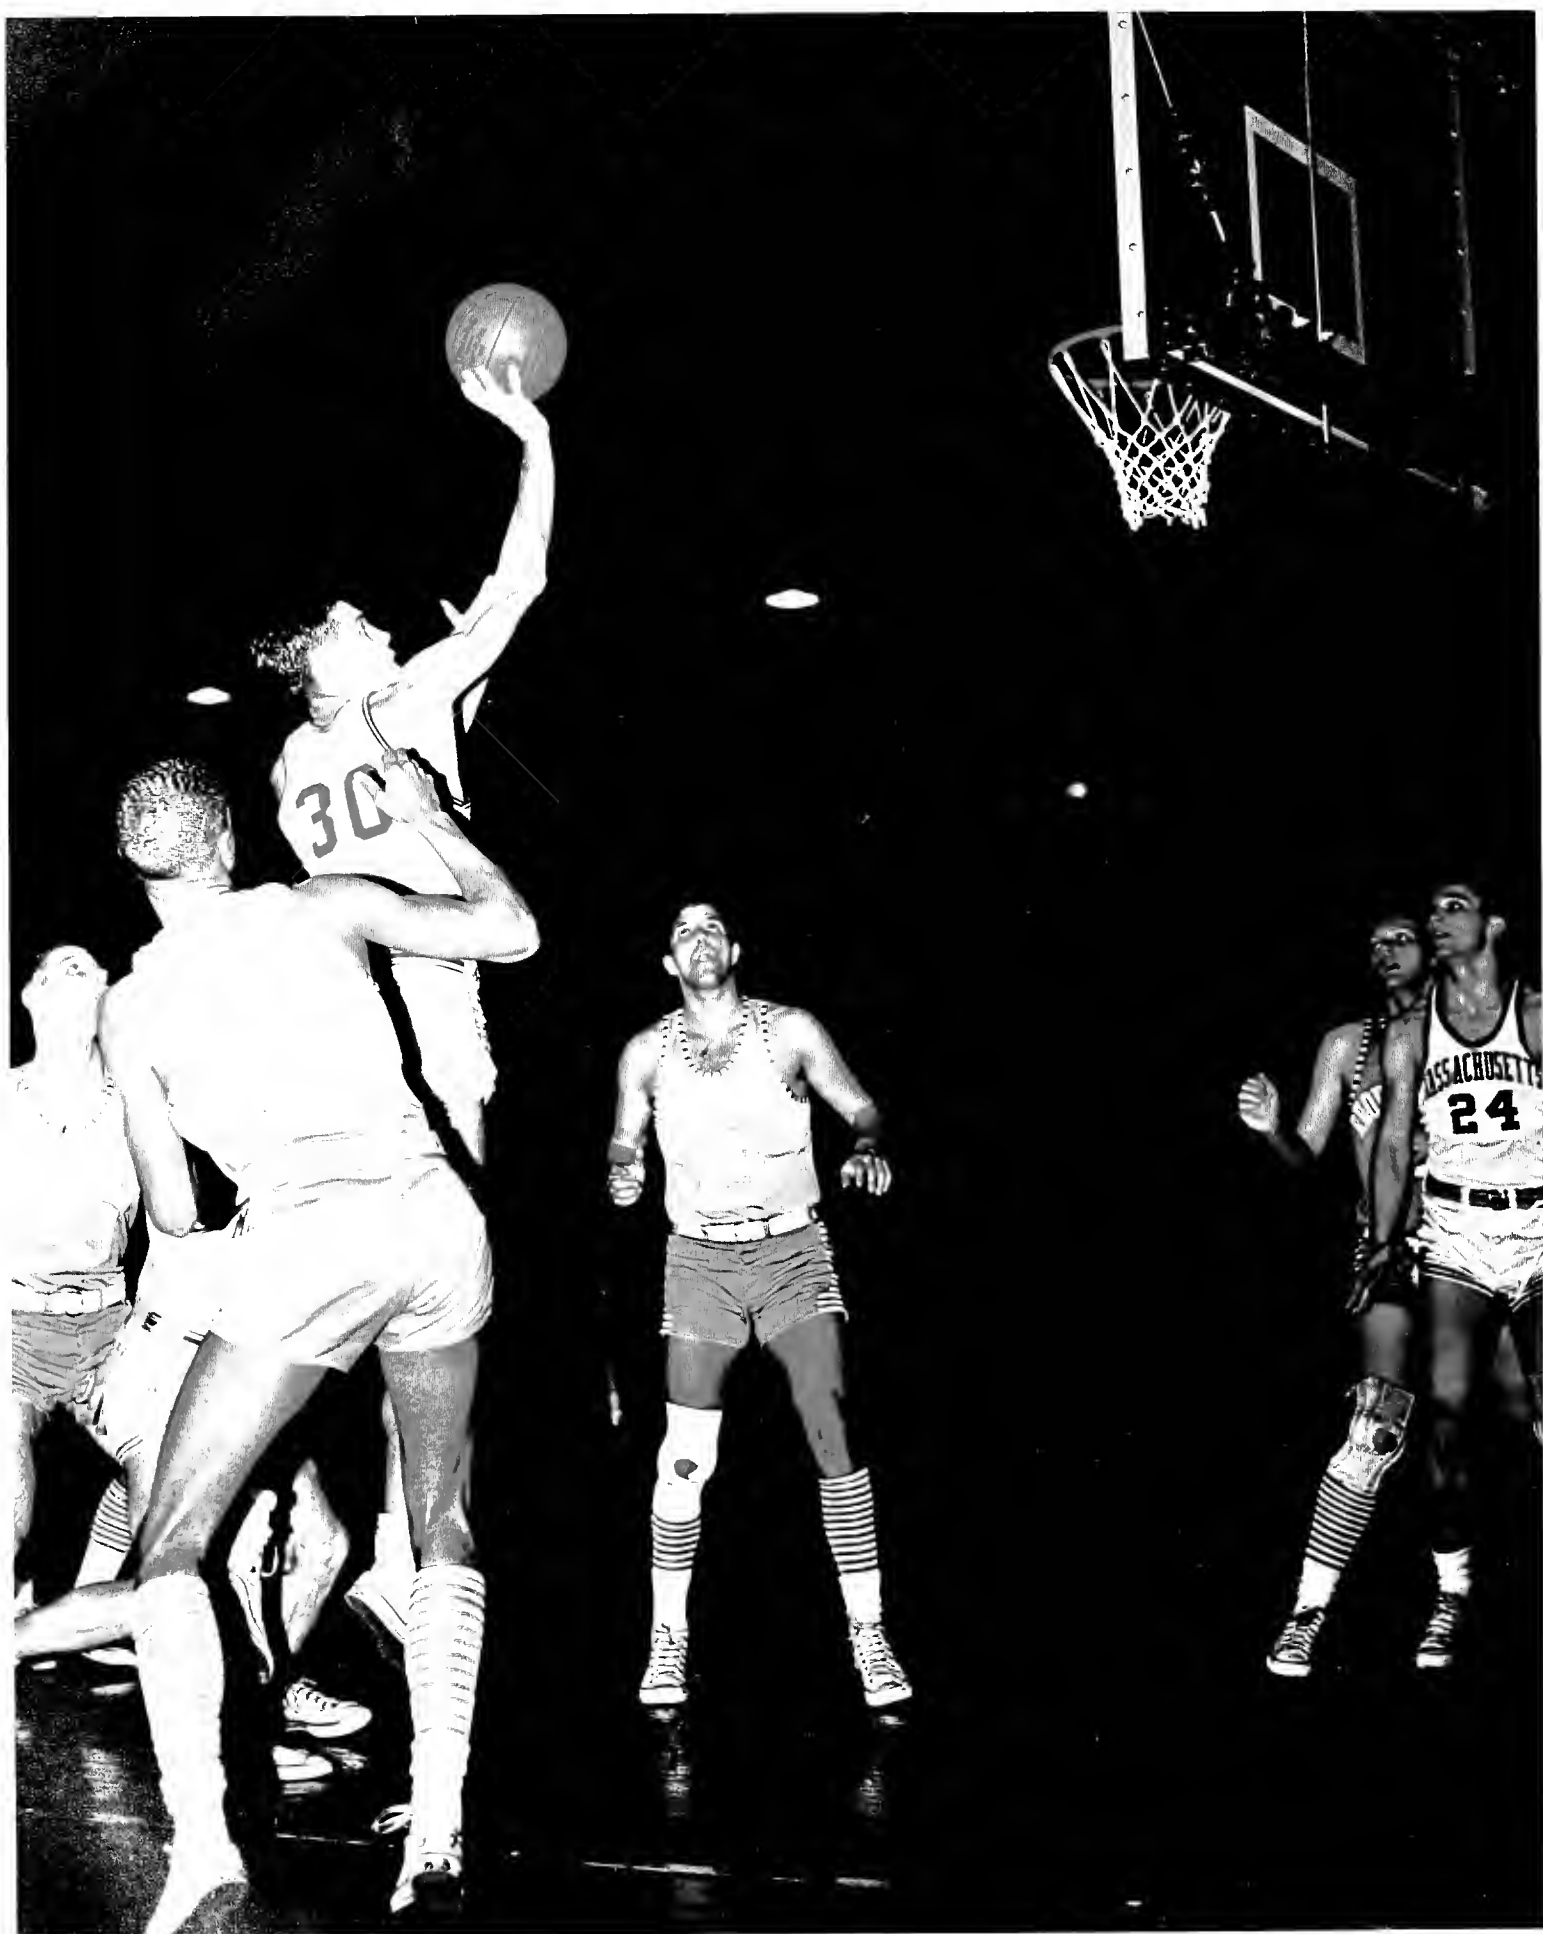

It is dangerous, I realize, to try to include everyone, for, someone invariably is left out. In an effort to avoid this unfortunate situation, I again would simply like to extend my gratitude to all of those who have contributed, and to apologize for not publicly acknowledging everyone.

CLOSING

Victory at all costs, victory in spite of terror, victory however long and hard the road may be; for without victory
there is no survival.

Winston Spencer Churchill

Without music, life would be a mistake.

Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche

All lovely things will have an ending,
All lovely things will fade
and die,
And youth, that's now so bravely spending,
Will beg a penny by and by.

Conrad Aiken

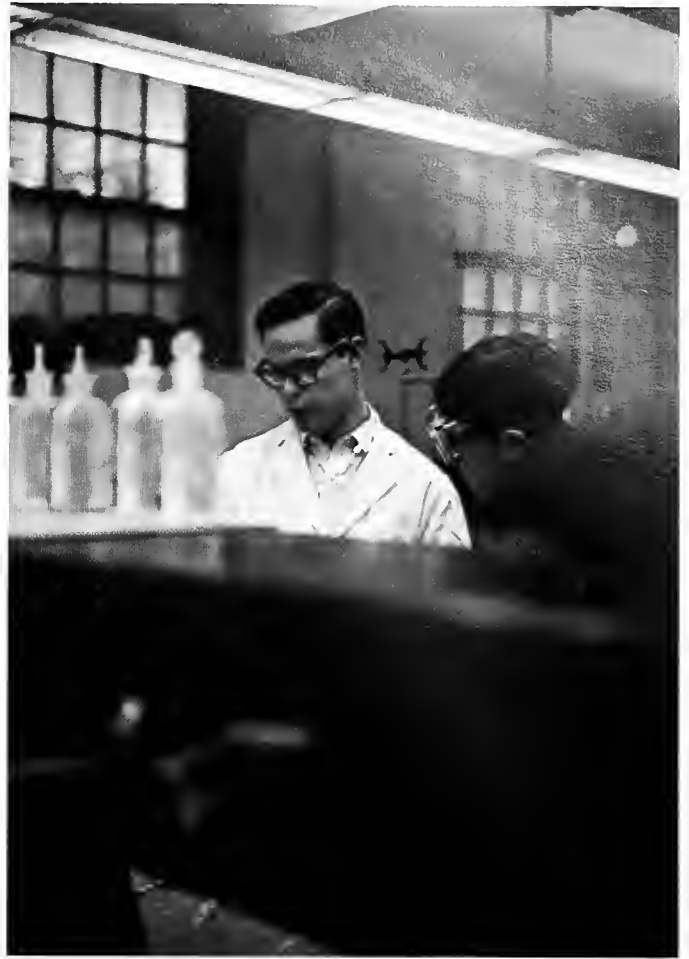

Let knowledge grow
from more to more.

Alfred, Lord Tennyson

The day is done and darkness
Falls from the wings of night,
As a feather is wafted downward
From an eagle in his flight.

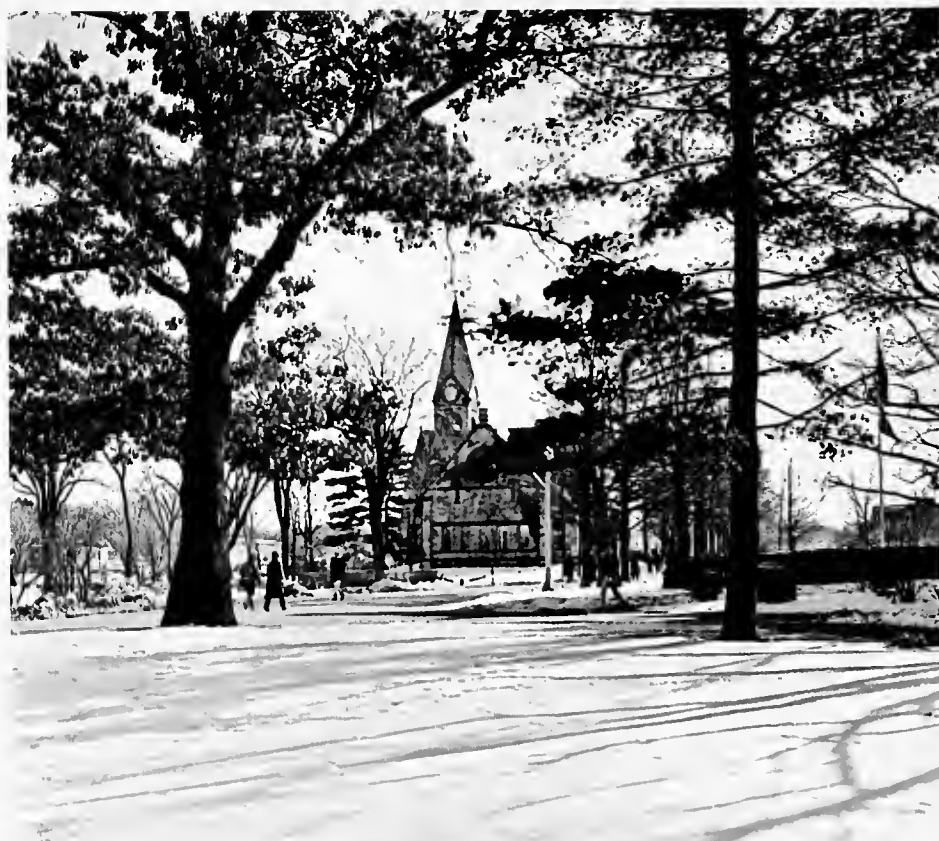

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

Consider that this day ne'er dawns again.

Dante Alighieri

For Memory has painted
this perfect day
With colors that never fade
And we find at the end of a perfect day
The soul of a friend
we've made.

Carrie Jacobs Bond
